LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 10.—The King of England opens "his" Parliament, in which he has as little real power as one of the Hopi papooses.

He makes a speech, written by Baldwin, this time. Had the election gone otherwise, Lloyd George, Asquith or MacDonald would have written it for him.

THE WORDS put in the King's mouth tell of England's determination to go ahead with the great naval base at Singapore. The Labor party meant to give that up. The Tories reverse the decision. This country will welcome Britain's Singapore base. It means added protection for the white races against Asia.

The great crime of the Washington conference was our agreement not to fortify Guam.

As a result of that agreement we now have certain elements in Japan impertinently questioning America's right to send her fleet into the Pacific Ocean.

BRITAIN'S KING expresses the British decision of the recent election saying he will not ask Parliament to consider treaties with Russia. But "normal intercourse between the two countries shall not be interrupted."

THAT'S COMMON SENSE. "Whatever else you do, don't INTERFERE WITH BUSINESS" is the motto. Lord Beaverbrook, when here last time, said: "Trade with Russia? Of course we trade with Russia. We trade with cannibals if they have anything that we want or can buy anything we want to sell."

The British have plenty of sentiment, but it's in their books of poetry. They don't let it interfere with the growth of the British Empire.

ONE DISPATCH tells that James B. Duke, who has made millions in many enterprises, is giving an enormous fortune to education and charity, tens of millions.

Another dispatch tells you that Mr. Eastman of Rochester, following other generous gifts, now gives fifteen millions more for education. He gives away priceless stock in his great enterprise and says he will enjoy managing the concern all the more, knowing that while he works for the Kodak Company, the money that it earns will be working for other people.

That "wholesale altruism," fortunately for this nation, increases here every day. The man that once would have used his fortune in a foolish effort to bribe divine Providence, now dedicates a fortune to the service of others, thinking more about the welfare of millions of his fellow men than about his own unimportant little soul.

THE PIONEERS that struggled across this continent, seeking out paths over the mountains, fighting for life as they came, thought they were coming here to find gold for themselves. They were opening the way for millions destined to find health and happiness in a higher civilization on this coast.

Old frontiersmen in the East, of Daniel Boone's type, cutting down trees, fighting Indians, shooting bears, thought they were merely establishing homesteads for their own children.

They were units of energy, helping to create the United States.

Those tiny creatures that worked under the waters of the Pacific Ocean, building up coral reefs, building each a little place for itself, were, by combined effort, building the beautiful islands of the Pacific. As they worked, so we work, always for the future.

IF THE moon thinks at all, as she sails in silver majesty through this dark blue sky of evening, she probably thinks that she travels around the

SUMMONS 4 IN JAZZ PARTY

Girl and Three Men to Face Court in "Millionaire-Mansion" Case

Large gobs of gloom eddied and swirled today among the Louis Quinze appointments of Boston's "millionaire-for-a-day mansion" at No. 478 Commonwealth avenue, where jazz holds forth on occasions—and then on other occasions, bridal parties, teas and the like.

The dark brown atmosphere was occasioned through four court summonses issued today in Roxbury court against Joseph Ryan, Alexander Bannwart, Paul Ludovic and Margery Lee, all of whom are alleged to be connected with the enterprise.

On December 17 these four, charged with maintaining an unlicensed public amusement, must tell the judge how it came that thirteen young ladies and thirty-five young men were shaking a terpsichorean festival in the unlicensed Back Bay town house.

The summonses were secured today by Captain Perley Kneeland and Motorcycle Officer George Cassell, who visited the place yesterday while the guests, most of them of student age and appearance, were enjoying themselves heartily.

POPULAR WITH VALENTINOS.

Until a comparatively short time ago the town house—real "brownstone" and all—was occupied by a millionaire. When he gave it up, Alexander Bannwart, who has seen some little fame in Boston before, not to mention Washington, conceived an idea.

His way of looking at life was that everyone wants to "put on the dog," which is cross-word verbiage expressing that everyone desires to do things up brown once in a while—

BRIDGEWATER BUILDINGS ARE RAPIDLY CONSUMED

Photograph shows one building rendered a mere shell by the rush of the flames. At the left an adjoining building has just caught. Lack of sufficient water handicapped the Bridgewater department as well as the firemen from neighboring communities who gave aid. Two ponds were drawn on for water.

NOW SISTER OF KIMBALL HAS VANISHED

Rehoboth, Dec. 10.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of William H. Kimball, twenty-three-year old athlete of this town, was intensified today.

State authorities carrying on an investigation were involved in a maze of facts, incidents, reports, surmises and contradictions.

Some of the high lights in the case follow:

1—Marjorie, twenty-five-year-old sister of the missing youth,

Bride Was Waiting But Fiance Didn't Know Her Name

Taunton, Dec. 10.—Advised by City Clerk Edwin A. Tetlow to "go out and be introduced" to the girl he intended to marry, a man who applied for a license and was unable to tell the name of his prospective bride, failed to take the advice.

After waiting at the church for several hours the girls left for home.

Accompanied by a woman who it developed was slated to be bridesmaid at the ceremony, the man went to Tetlow's home. He gave his name and other required information, but was unable to tell anything of his fiancee beyond the fact that her name was "Frankie."

She was then waiting for him to return to the church.

BLOOD-STAINED CLOTHES MAY BARE MURDER

A bundle of men's clothing, bloodstained and pierced with a bullet hole, was found on the grounds of the Wentworth Institute on Huntington avenue today. The police believe the owner has been murdered.

An alarm and description of the garments was sent to all police stations in Boston and surrounding territory and efforts are being made to check up on persons reported missing.

The clothing was of good quality. It included a brown suit with a thin green pencil stripe, a heavy ulster and a shirt. There was a bullet hole through the shirt, about where it would cover tht wearer's heart. The blood in which all the garments were soaked was undoubtedly human blood, police say.

Two youths passing through the grounds found the bundle. They were John Barry of No. 12 Gurney street and Thomas Miltr of No. 18 Mindora street.

They turned the clothing over to Capt. Gallivan at the Roxbury Crossing Police station.

HARRIS' JOB IS SPURNED BY DALLINGER

The official shoes of former United State Districty Attorney Robert O. Harris at Boston were spurned coldly today by Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger, Republican, who had been put forward b ythe drys as one of the men whose selection they would smile upon.

In a formal statement given out at Washington, Representative Dallinger declared that he is not a candidate for the office held by Judge Harris, before he was removed by President Coolidge when he refused to resign.

The rejection of the Federal prosecutor's job constitutes another set-back for the drys, who have had a Massachusetts delegation in Washington, treading hard on the heels of Attorney General Stone, Senator Butler and Speaker of the House Gillett.

With chaos engendered through the sudden removal of Judge Harris, the Federal prosecutor's office was left without a head and is still without one.

The selection of a successor appeared still far off today, with the apointing officials and the insistent drys still deadlocked over a choice.

300 GIRLS FLEE; FOUR MEN HURT

Three Buildings Destroyed; Woman Living Nearby Drops Dead

Bridgewater, Dec. 10.—Three buildings of the State Normal School here were destroyed, and 300 girl students sent shivering into the outer air, by a fire of undetermined origin today.

Four firemen were hurt, one of them seriously, and damage estimated at $1,000,000, was caused by the blaze, which resulted in a suspension of school activities for a week at least.

Principal A. C. Boyden and Fire Chief Fred Waite were unanimous in declaring that the bulk of the loss was due to the lack of water pressure.

The buildings destroyed were Normal Hall, the administration building which also contained a model school and classrooms; Tillinghast Hall, a "fireproof" girls' dormitory, and The Cottage, an old wooden structure.

Fire Chief William F. Daley of Brockton fire department broke one leg in three places when one of the walls fell in; Firemen Clement Chasse of the Bridgewater department and William Thompson of the West Bridgewater fire fighting force sustained burned eyeballs from sparks, and Fireman Arthur Mechenorff of Bridgewater was badly cut on the upper lip.

GIRLS SENT HOME.

Principal Boyden announced he had sent home all the girls but a few advanced students, but hoped work could be resumed in the remaining buildings in a week.

In the height of the excitement Mrs. Frances L. Fobes, an aged widow, died suddenly while returning to her home from a neighbor's house where she had taken refuge.

GLOUCESTER MAN, 81, BURNED TO DEATH

Gloucester, Dec. 10.—Edward P. McCall, 81 years old, an invalid, was burned to death today when fire destroyed his home on Concord street, West Gloucester. He was trapped in a bedroom on the second floor of the frame house. His brother, the Rev. Peter McCall, was badly burned while trying to rescue him. With a third, brother, James, and a housekeeper, the aged invalid and the Rev. Mr. McCall have made their home here for eleven years.

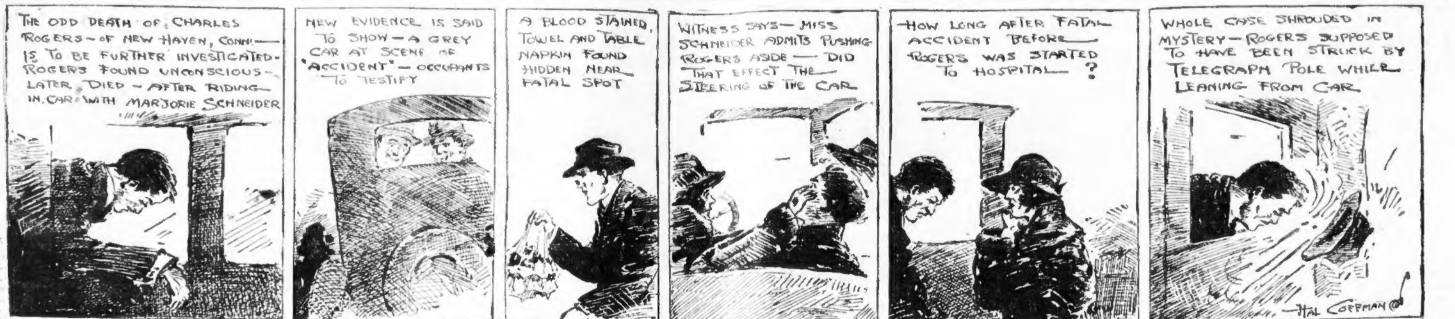
DEATH OF YOUNG ROGERS STILL TO BE PROBED -:- -:- By HAL COFFMAN



THE ODD DEATH OF CHARLES ROGERS—OF NEW HAVEN, CONN.—IS TO BE FURTHER INVESTIGATED—ROGERS FOUND UNCONSCIOUS—LATER DIED—AFTER RIDING IN CAR WITH MARJORIE SCHNEIDER
NEW EVIDENCE IS SAID TO SHOW—A GREY CAR AT SCENE OF "ACCIDENT"—OCCUPANTS TO TESTIFY
A BLOOD STAINED TOWEL AND TABLE NAPKIN FOUND HIDDEN NEAR FATAL SPOT
WITNESS SAYS—MISS SCHNEIDER ADMITS PUSHING ROGERS ASIDE—DID THAT EFFECT THE STEERING OF THE CAR
HOW LONG AFTER FATAL ACCIDENT BEFORE ROGERS WAS STARTED TO HOSPITAL—?
WHOLE CASE SHROUDED IN MYSTERY—ROGERS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN STRUCK BY TELEGRAPH POLE WHILE LEANING FROM CAR
—HAL COFFMAN

Majorie Scnneider, a dashing and wealthy young society bud of New Haven, Ct., has become involved in a sordid mess through the death of Charles Rogers who was riding in her car at the time of the "accident"—if it was an accident. Rogers and the girl had dinner at a road house, after having been to a football game. Quarrel took place there about girl. Other young men entered into story. A grey car with two occupants, the prosecutor says, may help to throw light on mystery. Miss Schneider, admittedly intoxicated while driving car. Rogers now dead. Aren't things like these enough to make ANY GIRL watch her step before it is too late and she becomes involved in such a scrap? HAL COFFMAN.

KLAN ACCUSED OF SLAYING KIMBALL

has not been home since before his disappearance and her father, Ivory W. Kimball, does not know her whereabouts.

2—William is said to have quarrelled with his father, which the senior Kimball denies.

3—The young man disappeared near a spot where a former Seekonk town official is believed to have committed suicide.

4—Search is being prosecuted in Boston for a young woman said to have been William's sweetheart.

5—Mysterious telephone messages received at the home of Sheriff Nichols stating the body of young Kimball had been found.

6—A statement by his younger brother Albert that William had been threatened by the Ku Klux Klan.

According to Abert Kimball, who is fifteen years old, Marjorie left home on November 22 when a dispute between William and his father occurred.

The elder Kimball denied that there had been a quarrel, athough admitting he had not paid William for farm work done during the Summer.

Albert declared William and his father had an argument in which Kimball, senior, stated he was not going to keep William's saddle horse in the barn and feed it any longer.

Mr. Kimball said his daughter had gone "some place where they'll pay her better than I will to do cooking." He said he did not know where his daughter was living, but that he had seen her at East Providence Six Corners yesterday afternoon.

"She came across the street and asked me whether I had heard anything about Bill," Mr. Kimball said. "I said no and she went away."

Asked if he had not attempted to learn his daughter's address, Kimball replied:

"No, I don't care."

State and local police today are investigating Klan activities in connection with the case after Albert's statement.

"My brother was working in Peoria, Ills., last year and was first threatened by the Ku Kluxers there," young Kimball told the authorities.

"They tried to get him to join here. But he laughed at them again," Albert said. "They got mad and told him to watch out. He told them his fists could watch out for him."

Ira Kimball, father of the missing youth, declared today that he would spend every dollar of his savings in unraveling the mystery surrounding his son's disappearance.

"I want my son, dead or alive. This suspense is terrible and I will never stop until I find out what became of him," the parent said.

Forgotten U.S. Bonds Costing Owners $1,500,000 Yearly

Washington, Dec. 10 (I.N.S.).—Scattered throughout the United States are many thousand investors who have forgotten all about some $30,000,000 in Government non interest bearing securities which they probably have stowed away in dusty garrets, old tin cans, mattresses and safety deposit vaults.

This forgetfulness, disclosed by the United States Treasury today in a survey to determine the amount of outstanding bonds which have ceased to pay interest, is costing the owners $1,500,000 annually in lost interest.

SUMMONS FOUR IN BACK BAY JAZZ PARTY

at any rate you get the meaning.

For instance, every bride dreams of a glittering wedding, but the ancestral home is a bit too tarnished and hotels are so awfully artificial at a time when nothing material should mar romance—and so on.

Then the dear chattering ladies who so love to dabble a bit at whist and chat smilingly, at length, about anybody not present—environment means everything in such an instance and a lovely home hired for an afternoon—my dear, I just can't express it.

Dancing party Valentinos just loved the atmosphere of regal wealth, even if the cash in the right hand pants pocket did give off only a feeble jingle, but louder than any rustle of green, which wasn't present at all.

So Bannwart and the rest were picking off a nice wedge of comfortable money over a period of months through letting the gloriously appointed home to select parties who selected the fountain pen and check book from out their pockets quickest and most convincingly.

Yesterday George Cassell, as handsome a young motorcycle cop as ever looked through amber glasses, was picked by Capt. Kneeland to look into complaints of neighbors regarding this and that, and who can tell.

"I'll let George do it," said the Captain—and George did.

But of course Cassell didn't go in character as a bold, fast-rolling motorcycle cop—or even as a patrolman.

In mufti, as Bannwart himself would say, George Cassell has that chic, well-pressed boulevardiere appearance that lends itself, that indicates either a scion of great wealth or a senior who has plunged heavy on what has been nicknamed "the annual classic" and has come out with more than enough cash to buy a new edition of "college-stuffed clothes."

In the right line George might even be taken for a younger professor—not of pedagogy or ephthalmology or dendrology or other light subject, but of something tasty and worth while, even exciting and romantic.

THEN CAPTAIN SQUEEZED IN.

That's George in his civilians and he went to the Back Bay mansion with all the apparent light-hearted cheerfulness of a youth who has just received his report card, but got the wrong numbers.

The policeman offered his 75 cents and got inside. There was dancing all right and a lot of it and when Cassell gave his captain the high sign, the captain squeezed his ample frame in, too.

A little talk to the bubbling young chaps and student girls sent the latter scurrying for their wraps and hurriedly-remembered "dates."

An innocent punch was being served, so there was nothing off centre except that the place had no license to conduct an amusement.

Hence the summonses and the gloom.

MYSTERY AUTO NOW FIGURES IN ROGERS CASE

New Haven, Dec. 10.—Before resumption of the grand jurors' inquiry into the death of Charles C. G. Rogers, bond salesman, fatally hurt while in Miss Marjorie Schneider's car at North Haven on the night of November 1, in that town today Ward Church, town prosecutor, and himself a grand juror, said he had reached the conclusion that still another automobile—a "mysterious gray car"—had figured in the incident.

Mention of such a car was made at Coroner Mix's inquiry by Mrs. Ruth Hulse, one of the guests at a Wallingford inn, where Rogers and Miss Schneider had dined before his death November 1.

Coroner Mix attached no importance to the reported "gray car." He expressed belief that Rogers' death was accidental.

Edward Marshall and Jacob Ruskin, two Wallingford boys, were called as witnesses today. They were riding by the scene of Rogers' fatal injury in a car which they declare was a black one. Neither testified at the coroner's inquiry.

Another witness who appeared voluntarily today was Miss Frances Williams of New Haven, companion of Bernard Wilhelm at the inn. Wilhelm is a brother of Mrs. Hulse.

Eleven witnesses appeared for examination, including Dr. Marian Scarborough, coroner-physician, who testified concerning the autopsy on Rogers' body. The hearing was held behind closed doors.

HERE'S PROBLEM FOR FIRST CLASS IN LAW

CLINTON, Dec. 10.—Cross-word puzzle fans might toy with this problem for a time.

Colombo Tassinari decided to sell a tenement house on Main street. He put the house in the hands of real estate agents.

Two of them, Patrick F. Cannon and John B. O'Toole sold the property to Pietro Pinardi and Napoleon Levine. Tassinari moved to Worcester and the Levine and Pinardi families moved into the house, where they are living. Pinardi has the deed, and Judge Franklin Freeman of Leominster was called on to decide the issue of ownership. Judge Freeman took the matter under advisement.

SPEED $111,000,000 DRIVE FOR BIG "NEW NAVY"

Washington, Dec. 10 (I.N.S.).—Spurred by the demands of Secretary Wilbur for a stronger navy, administration leaders in the Senate today announced a drive for final enactment of the $111,000,000 "new navy" bill.

The measure, tied up since the last session of Congress by a technicality, would bring the American Navy up to the 5-5-3 ratio allotted by the Washington Conference. It authorized appropriations for building eight new cruisers of the swiftest type, for converting six battleships into oil burners and for building six gunboats for use in China.

Poisoned Dart From Car Hits Woman

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 10.—Police were searching for a mysterious curtained car from which a woman pedestrian was shot with a dart said by medical examiners to have been smeared with lead and cedar poisoning.

Prompt cauterization of the wound was reported to have placed the woman victim of the unusual shooting out of danger.

BEDLOE'S ISLAND IS RULED NATIONAL PARK

New York, Dec. 10.—The State of Liberty on Bedloe's Island is now a national monument, and its base is a National Park. Announcement of the new status was made by the Army information service on the basis of a proclamation issued nearly a month ago by President Coolidge.

The President's proclamation was based on an act of Congress of 1906.

WOULD DEPORT MOTHER OF CHAPLIN

Los Angeles, Dec. 10.—Charlie Chaplin spent today opening telegrams of congratulations upon his recent marriage to Lita Gray.

He opened one that caused the beaming smile to fade from his face and an expression of deep concern to take its place.

It was an official communication from the Department of Labor at Washington. It informed the comedian that his aged mother, who has been an invalid for many years, must leave the United States on or before next March 24.

The mother, Mrs. Hannah Chaplin, was admitted into this country from England, in March, 1921, under bond, for medical treatment. She was judged ineligible for citizenship at the time. Chaplin, however, was determined she would get the best of medical treatment, and he brought her to Los Angeles with him and put her under the care of the best known physicians of the West Coast.

40,000 Extras to Be Needed to Handle Christmas Mail

Washington, Dec. 10.—Between 40,000 and 50,000 extra employes will be required to handle the peak load of Christmas mail, postal officials today estimated. The extra cost was estimated at about $2,500,000.

The New York postoffice and its branches will need at least 2,000 extra employes, with a corresponding increase planned for the large offices throughout the country.

The increased postal force will be in full swing when the peak of the early mail period is reached about December 23.

EDUCATION'S GREATEST PATRONS NEVER WENT TO COLLEGE

EASTMAN AND DUKE ONLY PUBLIC SCHOOL MEN

They are Titans of business and finance.

Their combined fortunes would, if turned into gold, tax the carrying capacity of a half a dozen drays drawn by forty-mule teams.

The total of their gifts to the American people, chiefly to colleges and institutions of learning would ransom all the existing crowned heads of turbulent Europe and Asia.

They are George Eastman the "kodak king" of Rochester, New York and James B. Duke the "Alexander of Tobacco" of New York and Charlotte, North Carolina.

And though they have given millions of dollars to American colleges and universities—

They never went beyond the grammar grades of school; they know little or nothing or high school education and as for college—

ESCHEW THE CLASSICS.

If one were to ask George Eastman concerning the philosophy of the Greek, Pythagoras, the Rochester master of millions might say in reply: "Oh, now you'd better ask Mr. Jones in Room 1186 about that."

And it has been written of James B. Duke that he once said, when asked of his knowledge of Shakespeare: "Believe me, I've never had the pleasure of visiting that charming English village."

James B. Duke has just announced the creation by him of a trust fund approximating $46,000,000 for educational and charitable purposes.

The trustees are instructed to set aside $6,000,000 of this amount for the erection and equipping Duke University in North Carolina with the provision that the money be given to Trinity University at Durham, N. C., if the name of that institution is changed to Duke University.

Other benefactions totalling millions are provided for the establishment and maintenance of hospitals; for the benefit of white and negro orphans in North and South Carolina; for assisting in the erection of Methodist Episcopal churches in rural districts of North Carolina and South Carolina; for pensioning superannuated preachers and other large amounts to colleges for whites and negroes in the South.

ALMOST $80,000,000.

Additional gifts estimated at nearly $30,000,000 by George Eastman just announced bring the total of the Kodak King to almost $80,000,000.

In his latest list of benefactions Eastman gives $12,500,000 to high institutions of learning, including a gift of $4,500,000 to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, bringing the total of his gifts to the Cambridge institute to $15,500,000.

As mysterious "Mr. Smith," Eastman gave M. I. T. gifts totalling $11,000,000 up to January, 1920.

The University of Rochester, N. Y., Hampton Institute and Tuskegee Institute, negro colleges in the South, are given large amounts—$1,000,000 each to the institutions for colored students.

Mr. Duke has no palaces or vast estates. To him the table is nothing, the bottle nothing. The drama and the opera have no charms for him.

His pleasures are his free gifts to humanity—to colleges of whose curricula he knows little or cares less. He is of the little red schoolhouse" and it is his greatest wish that the poor boys and girls of his beloved Carolinas may go onward and upward on the wings of the so-called "higher education."

Two great men—George and "Buck."

GIRL BATTLES FOR 'HUSBAND'S' ESTATE

JOHN D. FOLEY

BLANCHE DRINKWATER

Miss Drinkwater claims to have lived with him as wife for eight years.

COMMON LAW WIFE IN COURT BATTLE

Whether a common law wife, whose marriage without the formality of a ceremony is regarded as legal in the State where it took place, is entitled to a share of her husband's estate in Rhode Island, is a question which Judge George R. Stone in the Providence Municipal Court has been called upon to decide.

Miss Blanche Drinkwater of No. 227 Elm street, Braintree, is seeking to obtain a widow's share of the $70,000 estate of John D. Foley, Providence business man with whom she lived for eight years.

Relatives of Foley, who died about a year ago, maintain that Miss Drinkwater is not entitled to any part of the estate since there never was any nuptial ceremony in Massachusetts or Rhode Island.

"We both considered ourselves legally married, in a sense," said Miss Drinkwater. "We went to New Jersey in 1915 for the purpose of becoming man and wife under the common law which obtains in that State. We loved deeply but were never able to reconcile religious differences and so we never married legally.

"Actually the only move we made toward a ceremony was the mere formality of registering as man and wife in a hotel in Perth Amboy."

The hearing on the case will be resumed on Monday.

WOMAN READY TO SEND PASTOR TO GALLOWS

Elsie Sweetin to Fight for Her Own Life in Strange "Love Pact" Murder Case

By SONIA LEE.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 10.—Love and life no longer go hand in hand as far as they concern Elsie Sweetin and the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, her pastor, now on trial here for the murder of Elsie's husband, Wilford.

Civil war is in the ranks of the defendants. It is predicted that R. E. Smith, Mrs. Sweetin's counsel, will not hesitate to sacrifice Hight to the interests of his client. Hight, on the other hand, if things should go against him, may fall back on an insanity plea.

So on this, the second day of the "love pact" murder trial, it is each for himself—with the gallows as the goal.

Bad Quarter Hour as Magician Hits Coolidge Watch

Washington, Dec. 10.—While President and Mrs. Coolidge are abstaining from attendance at theatrical performances, some of the troupes are carrying the theatre to the White House.

An artist of stage magic moved to the Executive Mansion with a van and twenty-two members of his company, entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge for an hour while geese, pigeons, ducks and rabbits flocked and fluttered about.

President Coolidge showed his enjoyment even when the magician took a watch presented to him by the Massachusetts Legislature and apparently struck it a solid blow with a hammer. The President was relieved when the watch was recovered from a loaf of bread.

BOY KILLS GIRL IN ROW OVER PICTURES

Only 16, but Shoots School-Mate and Confesses to Crime

Camden, N. J., Dec. 10.—Stanley Curtis, sixteen-year-old boy of Fairview, confessed today, according to Prosecutor Wescott, that he shot and killed Betsy Ross, his sixteen-year-old schoolmate, but did not mean to do it. The girl was found dead at the home of her sister, with whom she lived in Gloucester, and when Curtis was questioned he first said she had shot herself.

Curtis said that he and the girl had quarrelled over some improper pictures she found in his possession. He put a bullet in a pistol he had in his pocket, walked toward her and pulled the trigger. He added he did not know why he did it, but admitted he was angry.

Curtis was arrested at the home of another school boy and taken to the Bell home and accused of the shooting.

The boy could not explain why three of the pictures were clutched in her hand when she was found dead.

Curtis and Miss Ross had been friends for two years and he was almost a daily visitor at her home.

BLOODSTAINS IN AUTO CLEW TO BANDIT PAIR

Worcester, Dec. 10.—A blood-bespattered automobile seat and a jammed revolver are clews the police are working on today to apprehend two bandits who held up the store of Dolph J. Ossene at Newton square while a policeman was in the rear room conferring with the proprietor, making away with $5 after an exchange of shots in which Ossene was hit. Bloodstains in a car, found abandoned, gave evidence of the accurate aim of the patrolman during the gun battle.

300 GIRLS FLEE NORMAL SCHOOL FIRE

Her own home was directly across the street from the school.

The fire started about five o'clock in the walls of the main building, presumably from defective wiring. It was discovered by the night watchman, L. Dyer, who gave the alarm, and then proceeded to arouse the 300 girl students sleeping in dormitories. He was assisted in this work by Chief of Police Davis Moore of Bridgewater and H. Loring Jenkins, a neighbor.

The girls dressed without excitement, gathered together their belongings and left the dormitories. By the time the local fire department arrived the main hall was a mass of flames, which generated a terrific heat.

"The fire had mushroomed up through the walls," said Chief Waite, "and we were at once up against a lack of water. There is a standpipe containing 250,000 gallons of water in town but it is forced to flow through a four-inch main so that we could not get anywhere near enough.

"All we could do was play a couple of feeble streams on the building, and when aid arrived from Brockton, West Bridgewater, Whitman and Middleboro, they were up against the same thing.

IGNITED BY HEAT.

"The only thing that saved the next nearest building was a pond in the campus to which re ran lines and pumped the water."

Tillinghast Hall, a brick building containing thirty-seven rooms and supposed to be fireproof, was ignited by the heat from the burning main hall, although forty feet away. It was destroyed in short order, but its occupants, a handful of men students and less than a hundred girl students, had sought safety long before it caught.

The blaze then leaped to The Cottage, also a girl's dormitory, which because of its wooden construction burned like tinder. From there it spread to the power plant, which was also consumed, but Woodward Hall, the dining hall, gymnasium and other dormitories were saved.

After placing their belongings in the homes of neighbors the majority of the girls returned to the fire and did what they could to help. They assisted in carrying books and furniture from buildings untouched by the flames, and gave first aid to firemen scorched by cinders.

Principal Boyden paid high tribute to their courage and calmness. As far as could be learned none of the girls became excited, and in some cases they were reluctant to leave even in face of the flames.

Mildred Tammett of Duxbury, who with Della Knowles of Orleans occupied a room in Tillinghas Hall, was one of the latter.

"I was awakened by the noise," she said, "but on looking out the window decided the fire was not coming our way and returned to bed. Fifteen minutes later, however, we were ordered to leave, so my roommate and I dressed, packed up and went to another dormitory.

HELP FROM BROCKTON.

The fire was eventually brought under control after the Brockton firemen, who had a quantity of lengthy hose, hooked up with Carver's Pond, half a mile away, and were able to throw a much larger quantity of water.

The young men students at the school were quartered in the town, and hurried of the scene as soon as they learned of the fire. They gave great assistance to the firemen, in handling hose lines and carrying furniture to safety.

During the course of the fire the dining room maids removed all the tables and chairs from the dining hall and piled them in a field across the way. They stood guard until the blame was extinguished, and then returned the furniture to the dining hall so that the girls could eat.

The main building contained a grade school used by the Bridgewater school authorities, in which advanced students taught. As a result, a large number of grade school pupils will have to be accomodated elsewhere.

Principal Boyden said the original cost of the buildings was $500,000, but it would cost twice that sum to replace them. He said he hoped to have things going at least in a makeshift manner in a week, but could make no definite statement until after conferring with Commissioner of Education Payson Smith.

FLED FROM ROOMS.

Among the girls who occupied rooms in Tillinghast Hall were: Mildred Shaw, Wrentham; Doris Hudson, Newburyport; Delores Murphy and Lillian Holland, Haverhill; Helen Wentworth, Bradford, N. H., and the following from New Bedford: Mary Cohen, Anne Cantor, Cornelia Rogers, Catherine McDonald, Frances Barriskesky, Mildred McMullen, Alice Haywood and Rose Claburri, with Anna Stephenson of Vineyard Haven.

Teachers quartered at the same dormitory were Frances Keyes, Anna Roth, Edith Bradford, Catherine Beatley, Minnie Prevost, Priscilla Nye and Freda Rand, music teacher, who lost a valuable piano.

The water supply, against which there have been numerous complaints, is owned by the Bridgewater Water Company, of which former Governor Eugene Noble Foss is said to be in control.

MERCIER'E SIDE OF STORY IS BEING TOLD

Pittsfield, Dec. 10.—The prosecution case against Louis Mercier, alleged dance hall "Valentino," charged with murdering his wife, was completed today and the defence was immediately opened.

As the chief defence counsel, James M. Rosenthal, began his opening a rumor was prevalent in the crowded court room that a defence motive would be put forth during the defense.

Dr. George Burgess Magrath, veteran medical examiner of Suffolk County, was the final prosecution witness. He testified that he examined the body and organs of Mrs. Mercier and that conditions were consistent with death by poisoning.

A portion of the stomach, he testified, was turned over to Dr. William F. Boos of Boston, toxicologist, for examination and tests.

Indications today were that the case would not go to the jury before the first part of next week. The Commonwealth required nine days in the presentation of its case.

McANARNEY WITHDRAWS AS COUNSEL OF SACCO

Because the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee failed to approve the course recommended by Judge Thomas F. McAnarney, the latter filed his withdrawal as counsel in the case. Judge McAnarney stated to reporters that his action followed the committee's failure to concur in the action he recommended, after Judge Thayer over-ruled the defendants' motion for a new trial.

COPS EMBRACE 'HUMAN FLY ROMEO'

Providence, Dec. 10. — A young man determined to check up on word from his sweetheart that she would not be home when he called, led twenty-five policemen a merry chase up and down fire escapes and along a narrow parapet on the fourth story of a house, and wound up by crashing through a window into the young woman's bedroom.

Reserves were sent to Carpenter street when excited neighbors telephoned that a burglar was clambering up fire escapes and battling, apparently successfully, with three or four policemen already on the scene.

The girl, by the way, had spoken the truth. She was out, but the investigating suitor received an embrace from Patrolman William F. Burkhardt, who awaited him in the room, while other policemen chased him or guarded exits.

At headquarters the girl refused to make any complaint for his "human fly" act, and the youth was released. The police have refused to disclose his name or that of the girl.

The young "Romeo" first ascended the fire escape of one rooming house to the fourth floor and started to go through a window. When the occupants yelled, he realized he was at the wrong house and continued around the cornice, and from a bay window leaped eight feet to the roof of another building.

He made his way along a narrow ledge, still four stories above ground, to the fire escape and descended to the window of his girl's room.

By this time twenty-five policemen, including Lieutenants Glidden and Drown and plainclothes men from headquarters, surrounded the houses and guarded the exits and fire escapes. Meanwhile, Burkhardt, followed by Patrolmen McCall, Kelly and O'Brien, had gone to the room.

MAYOR APPEALS FOR BOSTON AIR MAIL

Requests Aid of N. E. Congressmen and Senators to Bring Postal Planes Here

On behalf of the city, Mayor Curley today appealed to United States Senators and Congressman of the New England States at Washington for extension of air mail to the port of Boston.

A similar appeal was sent to the committee on Post Office and Post Roads of the Senate and House. The appeal said:

"After conference with experts, I find that a fair summary of the situation may be expressed as follows:"

The Boston air port is admirably situated in East Boston within twenty minutes of the Boston city Postoffice by either truck or street car.

The field is large enough to take care of any type of plane the air mail either is using or contemplates using.

There is ample room for con- [illegible] of an air mail hangar and such other buildings as they might care to construct.

Ample weather information is available by the U. S. Weather Bureau, as well as the Blue Hill Observatory.

The air-line distance from New York to Boston is 180 miles over a terrain that is easy to fly over, with ample emergency landing fields along the route.

The average weather conditions would permit arrival of the mail in Boston not later than 12 o'clock noon 95 per cent. of the days in the year, and the same percentage of departures would be possible.

Flying by night from Boston to New York would be comparatively easy, as a pilot would have no trouble in finding his way with landmarks such as the city of Providence and lighthouses across Long Island Sound.

A whopping big vaudeville show in aid of the Boston American Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund has been arranged for next Sunday evening at the Wilbur theatre. The entire net proceeds of this big production will be turned over to the fund for the sole purpose of buying food for the needy at Christmas.

The show will be under the personal supervision of Bert Spears, who has handled the theatrical benefit performance for the fund during the past three years. Under his skilled direction each succeeding show has been bigger and better.

STARS TO AID FUND.

Among those who will "do their stuff" are such favorites as Ruth Brett Zim, singing comedienne; "The Hub City Four," harmonists; Jack Griffin, musical eccentrique; Barker & Dunn, Hazel Childs, Chadwick and Loman, Eddie McGinley, Frank Lane, Mollie Klinger, Billy Moran, The Rollaway Trio and Charles Colley. Several groups from the various theatres and stars from the concert platform will appear.

Arrangements for tomorrow night's big charity ball and entertainment in the Copley-Plaza Hotel main ballroom have been completed.

The ball will be given under the auspices of Gertrude Dolan-De Petro Studios of Dancing and Madame Lyman School for Stage Children.

The entertainment will begin promptly at 8 and continue until shortly after 10 o'clock. General dancing will then follow until 1 a. m. to the music of O'Leary's widely known orchestra. Dress will be informal.

Among the talented children who will participate in the entertainment are the following: Francis Donovan, Patrick Hopkins, Arthur Burke, Francis Hogan, Walter Merrill, Tom Cowan, June Clausen, Kay McDermott and Anna Doolan.

Whole Nation Takes Its Metal Problems to Army X-Ray at Watertown

New Machine at Arsenal Locates Faults in Steel, Thus Saving Lives and Money

Once again the United States Army has demonstrated its efficiency as an agent of humanitarianism.

Paradoxical as it may sound, the army has taken the lead in an attempt to reduce deaths and injuries.

Out at the Watertown Arsenal, for the first time in history, a huge X-Ray machine is being used to detect flaws and defects in gun metal, thereby preventing a repetition of many fatal explosions.

Furthermore, as a result of the work being done at the Arsenal, the Army has leaped to the front in the field of metallurgical research.

FOCUS OF COUNTRY.

Hundreds of industries from all parts of the country have taken advantage of the progress made at the Watertown laboratories, and are sending metal there for examination.

Plans are now under way for the installation of an even larger X-Ray machine, and experiments are being made with another by means of which the properties of metal may be studied and formulae worked out for the improvement of the different alloys.

The present machine, of 280,000 volts, was brought to public attention by Colonel T. C. Dickson, commanding the Arsenal, when he ad- lsed the American Society of Me- ical Engineers in New York, ently.

NETRATES STEEL.

t was installed in an effort to vent the many fatal explosions accidents, not only in the Army Navy, but in industrial life as l.

efore it was put into use, it was essary to cut up castings to ex- ine their interior structure, and s process was far from infallible. vast change followed the in- llation of the X-Ray machine at Arsenal. Because of its power it netrates steel three inches thick l photographs the interior, reveal- g all defects clearly. Since its use gan it is said that the quality of el has improved 100 per cent.

Not long ago the X-Ray revealed ious defects in the cradle of an ti-aircraft gun in a place which ght have caused a serious acci- nt. As a result of the examination, s piece of metal was condemned.

The machine is similar to those ed in hospitals, only much larger, d is installed in a lead-lined room. he operator is in an adjacent room, periscope affording him a good w into the X-Ray chamber.

Dr. H. H. Lester is in charge of e machine, under the supervision Dr. F. C. Landenberg, director of boratories at the Arsenal.

Breakfast in Bed Is Ruinous to Youth, Says Pavlowa

HERE is the third of the series of articles on "The Secret of Perpetual Youth," written especially for Boston American readers by Anna Pavlowa, world's greatest dancer.

By ANNA PAVLOWA,
World's Greatest Dancer

American society women are too self-centred, lazy and gluttonous.

That is why there are so many so-called "old dowagers," who fill the space of two persons at social affairs.

Society woman perhaps more than any other woman in America want to keep young, and they more than any other woman, will continue to grow old at any early age, principally because of the way they live.

They are lazy most of them, and they eat to much and they think to much about themselves.

Many of these woman wonder how I keep so young. Why they can't keep their figure the same as I. I will tell them now. Breakfast in bed—that is one of the reasons.

You cannot expect to stay young and keep your figure if you either eat your breakfasts in bed or roll out of bed to the breakfast room and eat as soon as you get out from under the covers. The stomach is not ready for food then, and it should not be eaten. I never think of eating until I have been out of bed for some time.

If possible I try to get a little walk in before eating anything. Then I only eat a little fruit and a cup of tea or coffee. Sometimes I will eat a small piece of dry toast. That is all a woman should eat in the morning. And she should not eat that in bed or right after she gets up.

But the biggest fault with these society woman is that they are self-centered. They have no interest other than their own. There is not a creative thought in their heads. They are living for themselves. They are not trying to do something for the world. Their thought is, 'Am I nearing the top of our ladder? Am I slipping?' It is always 'I, I, I.'

Their husband's come home some night and tell of making a million dollars by a big business trade. Then the society wife sits back in her easy chair, eats more candy and is perfectly satisfied, for her husband is successful and she thinks she is.'

What a pity. As she slumps back she lets age come on. See? If she would only throw herself into some outside work. Give herself to doing something that would benefit the world, she would not have time to sit back and grow old. She would find the years passing while she was still young in spirit and figure.

(Another instalment of this interesting series will appear in tomorrow's Boston American.)

POULTRY HERE MENACED BY NEW DISEASE

Hasn't Hit Boston, but It Is Said to Be Spreading This Way

Boston live poultry dealers say this city is free from the reported poultry disease said to have originated in the Middle West and to be spreading rapidly through the East. It may necessitate a quarantine and an embargo of all live fowl shipped East.

The disease, peculiar to poultry alone, is incidental to the moulting period. It is not harmful to human beings. New York, Pennsylvania and parts of New England States are reported to be affected.

Alton E. Briggs, executive secretary of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, said today that no reports had reached him from any of the dealers of the prevalence of the disease in the local market.

At the animal industry department of conservation at the State House it was said that nothing alarming had been reported to the department. There is always fowl cholera, more or less. "There isn't anything new in the line of poultry diseases reported to us and we don't know what the new disease is," said an official.

U. S. CONSULATE ATTACHE DEAD IN LOVE MYSTERY

Belgrade, Dec. 10. (I.N.S.)—A post-mortem examination today showed that James Dayton, attache of the American consulate, died from inflammation of the brain caused by two bullet wounds. He was found wounded in his rooms while the body of a young woman with whom he was said to have been keeping company, was in an adjoining room. She had been shot to death.

Dayton's housekeeper testified that he had quarreled violently with the young woman and had ill-treated her.

ROMANCE DIES WHEN LARDER GETS BARE

Mother of Three Seeks Their Custody; Charges Plot to Put Her in Asylum

Not even the wife of a Klan organizer making $10 a day—some days—can retain that schoolgirl complexion on piccalilli sandwiches, which is one reason why Mrs. Helen Currier of Lynn was in Salem probate court today seeking custody of her three children.

Mrs. Currier is barely out of the schoolgirl age. She is three times a mother, yet she is only twenty years old. But the four years of her life since casting her lot with Donald W. Currier, Klan organizer, have been a mean trick, she says.

In support of this assertion, Mrs. W. L. Hagget, a friend of Mrs. Currier, testified that when she visited the latter, all that was in the Currier larder was a number of piccalilli sandwiches.

The mother has her two younger children, having taken them from the Attleboro home where the father boarded them. The third child is in the husband's possession.

ACCUSES LANDLADY.

In court, pretty Mrs. Currier placed most blame for the shattering of romance—as far as she is concerned—on an army uniform.

Indirectly the soldiers' garb was instrumental in putting her through a nine-day stay in the Psychopathic Hospital, she declares, because the uniform caused her to marry Currier, and the Klan organizer had her put in the Psychopathic Hospital at the behest of his landlady.

"It would drive anyone crazy to go through with what I did during the nine days I was at the Psychopathic Hospital," declared the young wife.

"I was asked questions that were silly; questions that none but a scientist could have answered. Just to watch some of the mentally unbalanced grabbing for imaginary objects and doing other foolish things, nearly had me frantic.

"I believe my husband planned this, hoping I would lose my mind. I was taken to the hospital and left there without a cent. But for my father and my lawyer, I might have been sent to an asylum. While I was shut up in the hospital, I was heartbroken for my children."

MARRIED SOLDIER.

Four years ago—when Mrs. Currier was only sixteen and a romantic girl, working as clerk in a Central square, Lynn, confectionery and ice cream parlor—a glorified American boy sauntered into the emporium.

"He made a snappy appearance in his army uniform," said Mrs. Currier, "with his puttees and belt. And he certainly was a smooth talker. He worked fast—and we were married at an age when I should have been going to school."

She didn't know then that Currier was a Klan organizer, she said. The glamor of the uniform soon wore out, as did the uniform. The quarrels began and there were frequent separations.

During the recent State election Mrs. Currier wanted to accompany her husband to Taunton where Klansmen, including Currier, intended breaking up one of Mayor Curley's rallies.

In the woods bordering the road to Taunton her husband put her out of the machine, she says, and she was forced to find her way back home as best she might.

"I am through now," she said. "I want my children and he can go his own way with the Klan—or any other way."

BIG GAIN IN U. S. STEEL COMPANY ORDERS

New York, Dec. 10.—Unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation on November 30, made public today, totalled 5,031,969 tons, an increase of 506,699 tons, compared with the end of the preceding month. It was the fourth consecutive month in which a gain was recorded. This increase exceeded the most optimistic forecast, the conservative estimate of the gain having been placed at 300,000 tons.

MURDER-SHOP PICTURED BY LANDLADY

German Wholesale Slayer's Work Revealed at His Trial in Hanover

Hanover, Ger., Dec. 10 (I.N.S.).—A butcher shop, where Fritz Haarmann, the meat vender, practiced his grisly trade upon human beings was the picture which took form today in the trial of the vulture murderer.

Frau Engel, the mild-mannered little landlady, who testified she knew nothing of the murder-shop Haarmann made of his little attic room, was the prosecution's star witness today. She told how Haarmann had sold her as much as thirty-five pounds of meat a week.

"It was always the same size—always lean pieces," she testified.

She got a steady supply of meat from her lodger, and told how she also purchased clothes from him, always at the cheapest prices. He also made sausages in the Engel kitchen, she said. Frau Engel testified she thought it was horse meat or pork. She said it tasted good.

Frau Engel complained of public feeling against her. A mother of one of Haarmann's victims cried at her: "You murderess! you ate my boy," she testified.

The Engel woman has been watched by detectives for months, in a vain attempt to get her to admit knowledge of Haarmann's murders. During the year Haarmann was a tenant in her home, Frau Engel worked as scrubwoman at the police station.

Chamberlain and the Pope talked twenty minutes. Later Quinones de Leon, Spanish ambassador to France, visited the Pope. Other delegates to the council of the League of Nations will be received tomorrow.

GET THOUSANDS AT STORES WITH BOGUS CHECKS

New York Gang Members, Working in Boston, Pose as Prominent Men

New York [illegible] "floaters" are victimizing Boston stores and business houses of thousands of dollars.

Posing as prominent residents of Greater Boston members of a numerous [illegible] are "laying down" a large quantity of worthless "paper," taking advantage of the Christmas rush in the stores.

The procedure is for a well dressed member of the gang to enter a store, make a purchase and then announcing himself as a business man, ask that the goods be delivered, proffering a check in payment. The check is always drawn for a much larger amount than is required to pay for the purchase.

The purchaser takes the change, and departs after having given a fictitious address. Later the check comes back marked "No funds." One store has suffered to the extent of $3,000.

Similar methods are used in business houses, although in some cases it is found that temporary offices have been engaged, but have just closed when investigators call.

According to the police the mob has numerous members, all well dressed, and frequently using women as lookouts. No man ever goes into the same store twice.

Spring Styles To Have More Colors Than Paint Store

New York, Dec. 10 (I.N.S.).—Spring fashions will be as colorful as all the jewels of everybody's birthday months.

Not the rainbow shades, but "jewel tones," according to a designer, will make the country's Fifth avenues glow like a handful of precious stones.

There are to be these tints: coral, amber, turquoise, jade, pearl white, pearl pink, aquamarine, amethyst, carnelian, and a host of others.

WED TWO DAYS AFTER HIS WIFE DIVORCED HIM

Former Chestnut Hill Garage Man's Re-Marriage Revealed in Appeal to Cut Alimony

The disclosure today that Ralph D. Somerville, former Chestnut Hill garage owner had been married to Mrs. Dorothy Francis, former wife of a prominent Malden dentist, two days after the divorce decree granted to his wife became absolute caused surprise in Malden's West Side.

Mrs. R. D. Somerville

Announcement of their marriage came as a climax to estrangements in the family of Somerville and of Dr. Melville F. Francis in the Summer of 1923. At that time Mrs. Francis went into seclusion at the home of her parents in Maine and Mrs. Somerville sued for divorce, charging cruel and abusive treatment.

The news of the wedding became known when Somerville in the Middlesex Probate Court in East Cambride, appealed for a modification of the $175 a month alimony decree. Decision was reserved. At the time he was ordered to contribute that amount to the support of his first wife and their child. Somerville said he was earning between $115 and $140 a week as a salesman for a beef packing house. He has since, he says, lost that position and is now earning only $60 weekly as a salesman.

Somerville and his second wife now make their home in Flushing, L. I., where he is buying a house with the proceeds of the sale of his former home in Malden.

His first wife is said to be under care of a physician in Philadelphia where she is a member of a prominent family.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Lung Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, Creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

There's Talent Aplenty, Beauty, Too, in Junior League's Comedy

By BETTY ALDEN.

HAVING seen "The Arcadians," the musical comedy offering of the Junior League, I am convinced of at least one thing.

Namely, that Mrs. Dudley Ranney is one of the most graceful members of society.

She is of the snappy brunette type, dark hair and most expressive black eyes. Petite she is, with the slimest and most perfectly proportioned of figures.

And infinitely graceful and poised. Two attributes with which the amateur theatrical artist is not any too frequently endowed.

But it was really a delight to hear and see the former Margaret Wellington play the role of "Eileen Cavanagh," the bewitching Irish lassie with the brogue.

She was especially easy to look upon in the last act, I thought. Here sh wore a perfectly stunning creation of cloth of silver, the flaring skirt having several insertions of silver lace. At the beginning of the act Mrs. Ranney wore a gorgeous wrap of flame-colored velvet, heavily befringed, which she later threw off. In the provious act the winsome "Eileen" wore a demure-looking costume of pale green taffeta, fashioned in the bouffant style, with a plumed bonnet to match.

Since Mrs. Ranney can not only sing and dance but act as well, the gods must have been in the most jovial of moods when they endowed her with such a bewilderment of riches.

Playing opposite the former Margaret Wellington was Henry Pratt as the devoted "Jack Meadows."

They really made an unusually well-matched pair. Young Pratt—he's had considerable experience in Hasty Pudding shows—sings and dances very nicely. Into the bargain he's of the dark-haired type—and quite good-looking enough to charm even the hardest-to-please of the debutantes.

One of the comedy parts was portrayed by Miss Katherine Gray, whose natural prettiness was entirely missing in the role of "Mrs. Smith," a lady of rich Cockney accents, much coyness and boundlessly hideous clothes.

Hats off to any pretty girl who is vanity-free enough to disguise herself as Miss Gray does in the role of "Mrs. Smith!"

Joseph Seabury was "Mr. Smith," a gentleman of great roving and non-truth-telling proclivities, also known as "Simplicitas" to h's Arcadian friends.

Joe Seabury is one of society's cleverest amateur dancers and he's won considerable fame in the comedy parts of various entertainments staged by society folk for this or that charity.

Mr. Seabury occasioned not a few laughs when he appeared in his short-skirted costume such as the ancient Greeks used to wear.

Another comedy part, that of "Peter Doody," the mournful-looking jockey, was played by Mortimer Seabury, who made quite a hit with his "My Motter" song.

Mrs. Ralph Hornblower as "Sombra" and Miss Grace Sargent as "Chrysaea" were the two attractive Arcadians who have such a troublesome time trying to reform old London town.

Joseph Sargent, Jr., who played the leading male role in the Junior League presentation last Winter, was "Bobbie." Mrs. A. Cecil Butler was "Lady Barclay," Miss Lucy Harding was "Lady Jim," Mrs. Richard Hallowell was "Amaryllis," Mary Weld was "Dryope," Mrs. Edmund S. R. Brandt was "Daphne" and Wayland M. Minot was "Sir George Paddock."

To say nothing of the bevy of fair young maids who enhance the chorus of "The Arcadians." Tonight is your last chance to see the show which opened at the Copley Theatre on Monday evening.

earth for her own delight. But divine wisdom, through the power of gravitation, has harnessed her to the oceans of the earth.

And as she travels, without knowing it, she creates tides that prevent the ocean becoming a stagnant, disease-breeding pond and in time will supply power for men everywhere on earth.

POWERFUL MEN that give money in millions, tens of millions, even hundreds of millions, Eastman, Duke, Carnegie, Rockefeller, Baker, perhaps don't realize that when they give money they make their least important gifts to the people. The value of their own work far excels that of all the money they leave or give away. Their money is an unimportant by-product of their lives.

WHEN JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER established the fact that competition is wasteful, and that organization on a big scale means economy and efficiency, he rendered a greater service to the people than in giving all his hundreds of millions.

When Mr. Eastman educated the traveling world to keep a record of things seen, and made it easy and inexpensive for mothers to keep a record of their children's growth, at the same time employing well-paid thousands, and building up a great city, he rendered his real service.

SO WITH Mr. Duke. When he built his scores of power plants in the South, harnessing energy going to waste, providing work at home for thousands and building up the Southern States to which he is attached by deep affection, he was doing more than merely giving away forty odd millions at one time.

IT'S A WORLD of contrasts. You note the record of generous gifts and unselfish planning. You read that our two dirigibles, Los Angeles and Shenandoah, are to be used by astronomers, studying eclipses and other cosmic phenomena. You say, "We are gradually becoming a civilized race."

NEXT YOU read from William Ockert, twenty-nine years old, his brief, complete statement, "My own brother tried to take my wife away from me, so I got a shotgun and let him have both barrels."

THIS REMINDS you that civilization thus far appears only in spots. But you know that it is growing, that in time changes all over the earth will be as great as the last few years in this marvelous region, where a great, beautiful city replaces what only yesterday was the sandy domain of the horned toad.

Audience Held to Foil Escape After Show at Sing Sing

Ossining, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Officials put into effect a new checking system to prevent the escape of any of the 150 convicts in the cast of "Sue Dear," a Broadway musical play which was presented here.

Two years ago, Patrick Dealey, a bandit, while costumed in the clothes of a woman character he had been impersonating in the annual show, escaped by walking out with the audience. This time the audience was required to remain in the chapel until the convict entertainers had been marched to another auditorium.

EVELYN NESBIT, BROKE, BLAMES HARRY THAW

Says Ex-Husband Started Home for Son and Left Her to Pay for It

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 10 (Universal).—Evelyn Nesbit has gone broke because of Harry Thaw, her ex-husband, she declares.

"Soon after his release from Kirkbride's sanitarium in Philadelphia last May he sought to restore himself in my affections by pretending a great interest in my son, Russell," Miss Nesbit said.

"He started to build a home for the boy, and then abruptly quit, leaving me to face payment on a $5,000 mortgage, and on other debts for which I was not responsible. I don't know what I shall do. I'm up against it.

"A few days after Harry was released his lawyer called and asked if there was anything Harry could do for me. I told him all I wanted was adequate provision for Russell. I told him I wanted my jewelry back, too.

"He gave me $2,000 as a preliminary payment, and then proceeded to purchase a property in Ventnor for me."

PROPOSED "L" STATION AT CHARLES STREET

Plans for $600,000 structure at Charles and Cambridge streets drawn and Legislature will give hearing on project December 18. Photo diagram shows proposed platform, waiting room and entrances from Charles street.

POLICE ROUND UP CHINESE SUSPECTS

Springfield, Dec. 10.—In the belief that many members of the warring Chinese tongs are drifting into the city as a result of the shooting of two members of the On Leong Tong by three Chinese said to be members of the Hip Sing Tong, Sunday night, Chief of Police W. J. Quilty has issued orders for the rounding up of every strange Chinese in the city and the arrest of all who could not satisfactorily account for their presence.

A rigid search for weapons also was made.

It was learned that the three Chinese arrested for the Sunday shootings will be taken directly before the December session of the Grand Jury without the formality of hearings before the district court.

Assistant District Attorney C R. Clason, who was present at the arraignment, is preparing the cases against them.

The condition of the two tongmen, who were severely wounded Sunday, is somewhat improved, but little hope is held for the recovery of one of them.

PLANS DRAWN FOR NEW 'L' STATION

The long-discussed station for travelers to and from the Massachusetts General Hospital, and other West End points, so difficult to reach at present, soon may become a reality.

Plans for a station on the Cambridge tube line, to cost $600,000, have been prepared by the department of public utilities, and the legislature will give a public hearing on the proposed station December 18 at the State House.

The new station will come between Park street station and Kendall square station, on the Cambridge line. It will be located directly above the intersection of Charles street and Cambridge street, West End, where the subway trains emerge from the ground to cross the Charles river.

It will have a separate platform for traffic in each direction, connected by a lobby just beneath the tracks. Stairways will lead to the sidewalks on Cambridge street.

The plans also provide for connection of the station by escalators with a possible station on a tunnel which may some day be connected, leading through Cambridge street from the East Boston tunnel. The tentative scheme is for the State to build the station and lease it to the Boston Elevated railway.

Removal of Tunnel Entrance Opposed

Two alternate plans of a permanent nature for the removing of the entrance to the East Boston tunnel at South Russel street on Cambridge street in the West End, at a cost of $1,500,000 and $2,500,000 respectively, are suggested in a joint report to the Legislature by the Department of Public Utilities and the Boston Transit Commission.

Until methods of financing future extension and additions to the Elevated have been decided upon, the joint commission recommends that no action towards removal be taken.

If the concrete fence seriously obstructs the vision of traffic it is recommended that a rail fence be substituted in its stead.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

U.S. TO REINDICT TRIBUNE IN TAX CASE

Direct Appeal to Supreme Court Seen as Next Step by Government

New York, Dec. 10.—Reindictments of the New York Tribune, Inc., publishers of the New York Herald Tribune, which a jury found not guilty of unlawful publication of income tax returns yesterday, is expected to be the chief action today in the government's case here in the income publicity tangle.

After hearing argument of both sides in United States district court yesterday, Federal Judge John C. Knox directed a verdict of acquittal, which the jury returned.

The government immediately announced its intention to appeal, but it was found that due to a technicality of the court's direction of acquittal, instead of quashing the indictment, an appeal could not be taken without reindictment.

Col. William Hayward, United States Attorney, indicated that this would be done today, and the court asked to quash the indictment. If this is done the next step will be an appeal under the Criminal Appeals Act, which allows appeal direct to the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Knox sustained the contention of the publishers that the act of Congress did not make it unlawful to print the amount of income taxes paid, but merely prohibited publication of income tax returns and details of taxpayers' incomes and deductions.

Don't look wistfully at winter pleasures

DOES sore throat throw you out of step with winter sports? Don't let it. There's no need of looking longingly at out-door pleasures this time of year because sore throat locks the door.

Guard against this trouble by taking the simple precaution of using Listerine systematically as a preventive for throat irritations and the more serious ills that so often follow.

When you feel that first "dry hitch" on swallowing, gargle with Listerine, the safe antiseptic. Don't let sore throat stand in your way just when you want to feel your best for business or pleasure.

Have Listerine handy always in your bathroom. It's the ideal, safe antiseptic. Its dozens of different uses are fully described on the circular that comes around every bottle.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

LISTERINE Throat Tablets, containing the antiseptic oils of Listerine, are now available . . While we frankly admit that no tablet or candy lozenge can correct halitosis, the Listerine antiseptic oils in these tablets are very valuable as a relief for throat irritations—25 cents.

ERNEST GLENDINNING; CLAIRE STRATTON

Two of the stars of "Top Hole," now playing at the Tremont, photographed as they left the Majestic Theatre, where they enjoyed "Janice Meredith." Both averred that the artistry of the film was a revelation.

GLENDINNING MARVELS AT MISS DAVIES

Poor in imagination is he who seeks to peer behind the scenes and penetrate the secret of the illusion.

So a noted writer of the theatre once remarked.

But Ernest Glendinning, star of "Top Hole" disagrees with this observation.

That is, if the writer meant the play-acting folk.

For, contends Ernest, much happier would be the ot of these play-acting folk if the audience could peer behind the "scenes" of the actor's emotions.

Then it would find that the actor gets more of a thrill out of his audience, if the sailing is right, than the audience gets out of the actor.

A cold audience, or even a mild one, chills the skill and powers of the actor no matter how hard the playfellow may try to battle against this reaction.

A warm or enthusiastic audience stirs the actor to his utmost. It grips him and makes him want to go out and do the whole show all over again.

GETS A REAL "KICK."

Such are the sensations most experienced by the playfolk in musical comedy.

And that is why Ernest abandoned a career of brilliant promise in the more serious side of the theatre for the play with the song and dance.

"It's the kick I get out of the response of the folks out front," as he himself put it. "And I can only get that kick out of musical comedy."

Yet Glendinning had just seen Marion Davies in "Janice Meredith" and admitted that he had got a "wallop of a kick" out of the photoplay. And, still more, it seemed to him that the actors themselves in making the picture must have got a "terrific kick" out of their work.

The harmony of the fine dovetailing of the characterizations, the concerted work of the actors in filling their roles, the smoothness of the dramatic movement throughout "Janice Meredith," all these things, sharply observable to the actor's eye, showed it, he said.

READY FOR REACTION.

Unfortunately, he added, the actors and actresses that set the audience athrilling could not be present to get the audience's reactions.

Ernest recalled his first experience in the movies. It was with the selfsame Marion Davies in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." He played Sir Edwin Caskoden.

"I've always maintained," he said, "that the atmosphere of the studio has a great deal to do with the successful making of the picture.

"'Janice Meredith,' the acting, reveals an atmosphere of warmth, encouragement and co-operation. I remember when I was helping make 'Knighthood' how I was struck with the demeanor and activity of Miss Davies.

"In all my experience as an actor I have never seen a fairer, a harder worker and as modest as Miss Davies. She seemed to take everything she did so seriously and intently. She had with her a pile of books dealing with the Tudor period, to see that everything was technically perfect in making the picture. Yes sir, the sincerity and simplicity she displayed was a thing to marvel at. She's a peach!"

MISS STRATTON THRILLED.

Fair and winsome Claire Stratton, his "love" partner in "Top Hole," who had attended the performance at the Majestic Theatre with Ernest, cast one of her all-melting smiles at the interviewer and the attention wandered toward Claire.

"Gee, I've come out of that theatre just athrob with thrills. It just got me and got me through and through.

"You know those delightful little love scenes in that picture reminded me so much of Ernest and my little love scenes in "Top Hole." I'm coming back to see 'Janice Meredith' again before our show leaves town. You know, we have three weeks more to go. In the meantime I'll have to hurry along and see whether I can't find those white shoes in some Boston store for my chorus girls."

And away he of the "kick" philosophy and she of the brilliantly blond beauty hastened.

HARVARD MAN WAS PIONEER IN THE AIR

A Harvard man, John Jeffries, 1763, was the pioneer explorer of the air, according to Alexander McAdie, M.A., M.Sc., who delivered the first of the Lowell lecture series on "The Weather in Peace and War."

Jeffries, according to McAdie, was the first scientist to make a balloon ascension and take careful observations of phenomena such as changes in temperature and barometric pressure.

Jeffries was the first man to cross the English channel in the air.

WOMEN FIND RAZOR GREAT YULE GIFT

Shaving joy for every man!

Evidently the women realize it, for many of them daily are buying the Boston American Gold-Plated Valet Autostrop razors as Christmas gifts for husband, brother, father and sweetheart.

The extraordinarily low price, forty-seven cents, make the razor the biggest Christmas bargain on the market. But the men folks who have purchased them by the hundreds for their own use are not waiting for the holiday to try them out.

"Surprised me," said one of the early customers today, when he returned for another razor for a friend.

"Slickest shave I've had in years. Didn't think it possible."

The article is not merely a razor, but a complete set, gold-plated razor, leather strop, gold-plated blade box in handsome metal case lined with velvet. A mighty nice looking and serviceable gift.

MINE TOWN HAD 'TOM' AS MAYOR

Exploited Grand Rivers, Kentucky, Project; Then His "Bubble" Burst

HERE is the ninth chapter of [illegible] W. Lawson [illegible] Boston [illegible]

ADVENTURE OF THE "BUSTED BUBBLE."

THE town of Grand Rivers, Kentucky, in the year 1890, slumbered [illegible] in [illegible] out [illegible] hills. Its [illegible] were [illegible] hotels, its people were modern Rip Van Winkles.

Every day the sun rose, blazed down on the dusty drab spot in the Kentucky foothills—and set in the West without anything having happened to stir a single pulse or to [illegible]

Through these mediums Lawson announced that shares of stock were for sale and that a 25 per cent dividend would be paid to investors.

The 25 per cent offer brought a concerted rush of men and women eager to buy the stock. [illegible] dollars clinked [illegible] into the treasury as a fund on which to begin operations.

Shows Extravagance

Now, for the first time in his life Lawson displayed to a wide eyed [illegible] the extravagant streak that [illegible] in him. He [illegible] special trains from Boston and New York to Grand Rivers [illegible] hundreds of invited guests—invitations awaiting all those who wished to journey—enjoyed a beautiful joy ride.

Each week-end for several weeks these excursions were run and each trip took from a week to ten days. Cigars were free, champagne was free, food was free—everything free on these excursions—and the guests were given free run of the property and afforded ample opportunity to thoroughly examine their investment.

Bankers, brokers, real estate men, school teachers, widows, [illegible] citizens in every line of business and every walk of life, most of them keen-eyed and with their suspicions always uppermost where a promotion venture was under way—made the junkets to Grand Rivers, and saw and were convinced. The iron ore was there, visible, and their eyes also sought out apparently inexhaustible supplies of coal.

The visitors glimpsed the railroad already in operation and were taken down to the two rivers that afforded another means of cheap and accessible transportation. Everything apparently was right on the ground to make this project one of solid gold.

Tom Becomes Mayor

To Grand Rivers, therefore, rushed thousands. Over night the sleepy hamlet in the quiet hills mushroomed into a bustling, humming community.

Stores were opened, workmen were paid "boom wages" and three hotels that reared their roofs suddenly endeavored in vain to house transients that numbered many times above capacity.

At the height of the excitement,

PLACE OF NEXT B.C.-H.C. TILT UNDECIDED

Worcester, Dec. 10—Ten games are listed on Holy Cross football [illegible] for 1925, which was made public today.

A feature of the schedule was the fact that the annual game with Boston College was listed to be played on November 28 at "Boston or Worcester."

Holy Cross hopes to have its new athletic field completed by that time and is desirous of having the game played on its own field.

[illegible] however if arrangements can be properly made to stage the game at Mount St. James because even though the athletic field is completed [illegible] seating arrangements, with additional seats [illegible] hold 25,000 persons at the very most, while the last two games between these colleges at Boston drew approximately 50,000 at each game.

When the Boston College schedule was announced last week Boston was given as the place of the game, but it was said that it might be played in Worcester if the Stadium is completed in time.

The main objection to the Worcester Stadium, of course, is its size as compared with Braves Field, but if Holy Cross insists on the "home and home" idea Boston will probably agree to it.

The schedule:

September 26—Manhattan.

October 3—St. John's College; 10, Providence College; 17, Harvard at Cambridge; 24, University of Vermont at Burlington; 31, Bucknell.

November 7, Fordham at New York; 14, Rutgers; 21, Boston University; 28, Boston College at Boston or Worcester.

BASKETBALL FANS RALLY TO BASKET FUND

You have got to hand it to the basketball fans. They have heard the appeal of the sporting department's section of the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund. Those who attended the basketball tussle between the Boston Whirlwinds and Fall River at Scenic Temple added $18.82 to the fund.

A [illegible] at the Casino A. C. of Lynn, through the courtesy of Matchmaker Jack Murphy, his associates and the Boxing Commission, netted $86.75. Attorney Medley Holdsworth of Lynn, the sponsor of the bill that legalized boxing in Massachusetts, made a hit and appeal to the fans. And they answered it with a shower of contributions.

Daniel J. Griffin came to bat with his usual contribution of $10.00.

Dennis J. Shea, manager of the Park Theatre, sent along a five spot with his best wishes for the success of the fund.

Harry Kelley dropped in with a $10 offering from Kelley & Hayes Gym.

Jack Kenney, circulation manager of the Advertiser, sent along his usual $10 contribution.

The sporting editor was not kept busy receiving contributions to the fund despite the fact he got on the job early and remained until late. Perhaps sport followers are waiting for today to give. Once more we remind you that the sporting editor may be located at the Boston American, Winthrop Square, Boston.

CASEY IS REAPPOINTED TUFTS FOOTBALL COACH

Moe and Joe They Get the D[illegible]gh---Sometimes

Moe copped another winner yesterday, making his record three firsts out of the last four selections, and the first of this streak paid 10 to 1. He sunk his jack on Cyclops and pulled in $333.33, which sends the bank roll up to $31,318.54. He is going after another money getter today that was whispered to him by Six to Five Casey.

CHIEF M[illegible]NTOUR HOT ON TRAIL OF ST[illegible]

The Little Black Satchel

By JACK CONWAY

[illegible] Dolan, fired out of baseball for all time on the charge [illegible] "fix" a ball game, is not at the baseball meetings in New York. It will be the first [illegible] this picturesque character has not been present as [illegible] in a great deal of [illegible] conversation and a [illegible] business.

As cocktail glasses clink and the [illegible] magnates get together, Dolan will be spending a very dreary [illegible] at his home in Kalamazoo, Michigan. While Dolan has a legal residence in Kalamazoo [illegible] afternoons, and especially his evenings, have [illegible] under the flickering lights of Broadway.

And you ask:

"Why is Dolan in Michigan?"

The [illegible] baseball magnates possibly [illegible] answer [illegible]

[illegible] Dolan knows a great many things about baseball. He [illegible] the confidences of men who have a great deal to say about the future of the national pastime.

Why Does Dolan Remain Silent?

After being barred from baseball for all time, Dolan engaged William Fallon, a prominent New York attorney, to open war on Judge Landis and Organized Baseball. Dolan declared he would tell everything, sparing no man.

Shortly afterwards Dolan departed from New York while Attorney Fallon became very silent in regard to "fixing" ball games and such things.

Along Broadway there were stories of Dolan receiving a visit from the man with the little black satchel.

Even in Kalamazoo, Michigan, a carefree character like Dolan, who loves the gay things of life, would be rather discontented if without funds.

It is also interesting to note that Dolan has been very [illegible] matter of talking since going West. They say the big open spaces sometimes make a person keep silent. Then they claim there [illegible] thing else which at times is even more effective than open [illegible] which it is wise to tie the tongue of one who may know too much.

The baseball magnates have a big opportunity to clean up baseball, to drive out the "fixers" and sure thing boys. An open hearing at this meeting could accomplish a great deal of good along those lines. But there will not be any startling investigations. Judge Landis will tell the magnates to "keep their shirts on" and then the cocktail glasses will clink merrily while everybody will once more vote baseball as the national pastime and the means by which a great many [illegible] gentlemen avoid real work.

We Are Now in Winthrop Square

The failure of a rather large number of gentlemen, who are continually asking publicity for various events in which they are financially interested, to drop in and give the sporting editor their contributions to the Christmas Basket Fund may be due to the fact that they have visited our old office on Summer street.

The sporting editor is located in Mr. William Randolph Hearst's new building in Winthrop square.

We know you will be very glad to inspect this modern newspaper plant. The sporting editor will be just as pleased to talk over old times with you and also to receive your offering for the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund. Unlike applications for Harvard-Yale football games, we do not put any limit as to the amount of your contribution. Remember, the address is Winthrop square.

OWNIE CARROLL REPORTED ON 'BLACKLIST'

Worcester, Dec. 10—Reports received here today from Detroit stated that Ownie Carroll, captain and star pitcher of the Holy Cross baseball team, has been declared ineligible to play organized baseball. Carroll will not graduate from Holy Cross until June, and therefore will play this season.

The reports, although not made clear, were to the effect that Carroll did not, or will not, live up to an agreement made with Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit club, a year ago.

At that time it was reported Cobb had signed Carroll to pitch for his team at the end of last season. Carroll, however, was firm in his stand that he would finish his college career.

Carroll would not announce his plans for a baseball career after his graduation, but, according to the reports attributed to Cobb, he will have to play with Detroit or remain out of organized baseball.

BURNS WOULD 'CONSIDER' BRAVES AS LAST RESORT

New York, Dec. 10.—George Burns, former star outfielder of the New York Giants, was "looking for a job" at the Commodore Hotel where the baseball magnates are stopping. Burns, who was released by the Cincinnati Reds recently, said he did not wish to become a minor league manager while there was a chance of signing with some National League club.

"I'll even play with Boston or Philadelphia," Burns declared.

National League to Meet in Same Hotel It Did in 1874

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—A half century ago Governor Morgan G. Bulkley of New York, who later was to become a United States Senator, presided over a small gathering of baseball men in the Broadway Central Hotel. From this meeting came the first professional baseball league.

In February, 1926, the National League will meet in the same hotel to celebrate fifty years of success.

When the league was first formed, the organization consisted of Brooklyn, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Hartford, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Louisville.

Mr. Bulkley was elected the first president and it was figured that each club should receive $10,000 a year in admissions, the players to receive annual salaries of $1,000 and the owners to break even. At that time only ten men were carried by each club.

Nurmi Hopes to Do Mile in 4:06

New York, Dec. 10.—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's track champion and outstanding star in the 1924 Olympic games, arrived yesterday on the Celtic to start a campaign against every American track record from the half mile up.

Through an interpreter Nurmi said:

"Under ideal conditions and when I am ready, I may be able to lower my mile record from 4:10 2-4 to 4:06. The opponent whom I fear as my strongest competitor is Willie Ritola. In the middle distances I think my strongest competitors are Ray Bucker and Ray Watson. I have no favorite distances, but can run from 800 meters, or approximately half a mile, to ten miles."

Johnson in N. Y. Hotel: Refuses to Be Interviewed

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.)—Byron [illegible] president of the American [illegible] in a New York hotel awaiting [illegible] to the [illegible]

Throughout the night the former "Czar of baseball," whose charges of gambling in the Pacific Coast League and criticisms of the action of Commissioner Landis in the O'Connell-Dolan bribery affair have brought threats of strife to the annual major league baseball meetings, denied himself to all interviewers.

According to his secretary Johnson will have a statement to make but [illegible] the joint meeting on Thursday, if such a gathering takes place.

Charles Comiskey of the White Sox, long a bitter enemy of the league president, is expected here [illegible] to attend the first annual meeting in five years.

Y. M. C. A. RIFLE CLUB MEMBERS MEET TONIGHT

R. H. Hernden, secretary of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Rifle Club, has called a meeting of the members for tonight at the Huntington avenue branch for organization for the season. New members will also be welcome and a demonstration will be given of the proper method of handling a rifle. Following the meeting the club will have a practice session.

NEWARK CLUB HEAD ADMITS CLUB FOR SALE

New York, Dec. 10.—Questioned concerning a report that Peter G. Meyers, a retired New York merchant, was arranging to purchase the Newark Club, John Conway Toole, president of the International League, admitted that the Newark Club was on the market and probably would be sold within a few days. Two or three offers had been made, he said.

1874 Golden Anniversary 1924

50 Years of Progress

ROGER G. SULLIVAN

founder of the 7-20-4 Cigar, was born in Bradford, N. H., in 1854.

In 1874 he hired a store and one cigar maker and started in business in Manchester, N. H. Later he located at 724 Elm Street, from which the 7-20-4 Cigar derived its name.

It was a struggle at first. Capital was limited and competition keen, but the uniform excellence of the cigar steadily gained, and for fifty years has continued to gain friends.

Since 1874 the business has outgrown six factories and now occupies one of the largest and most hygienic cigar factories in the world. More than 1500 men and women are employed, with an annual payroll of two million dollars.

In 1923 the firm of R. G. Sullivan paid the United States Government $2,225,000 for import and stamp taxes.

Notwithstanding its enormous growth, the entire business was owned by Mr. Sullivan until his death, July 13, 1918. Since then it has been and is now owned exclusively by his family.

JANICE MEREDITH

MARION DAVIES appears as [illegible] Janice Meredith [illegible]

"T[illegible] husband [illegible] and was [illegible] come back [illegible] there as a door [illegible] Now she'll have a [illegible] self," groaned the squire [illegible] took it so brave [illegible] on the road was rough [illegible] when its easy pulling she le[illegible]

Then Mr. Meredith looked into his [illegible] and saw another young girl a [illegible] more serious than Janice, perhaps, but still gay-hearted and loved [illegible]

He saw her making a stolen match with himself passed in review the long years of alienation from her family, the struggle with poverty, and, saddest of all, the row of little grave stones which told of the burial of the best of her youth.

He saw the day finally when a worn, saddened woman, she at least was in possession of wealth, to find in it no pleasure, yet to turn eagerly, and apparently with comfort to the teachings of that strange combination of fire and logic, Jonathan Edwards.

He recalled the two sermons during Edwards' brief term as president of Nassau Hall which moved him so little, yet which had convinced Mr. Meredith that his dead [illegible] had been doomed to eternal [illegible] and had made the [illegible] unyielding woman she was.

The squire was too hearty an animal and lived too much in the open air to be given to introspective thought, but he shook his head. "A [illegible] warp and woof we weave of the skein," he sighed, "that sorrow for the dead should harden us to the living."

Mr. Meredith rose, went upstairs, and rapped at a door. Getting no reply after a repetition of knocks, he went in.

A glance revealed what at first sight looked like a crumpled heap of clothes upon the bed, but after more careful scrutiny the mass was found to have a head, very much buried between two pillows, and the due quantity of arms and legs. Walking to the bed, the squire put his hand on the bundle.

"There, lass," he said, "'tis nought to make such a pother about."

"Oh, daddy," moaned Janice, "I am the most unhappy girl that ever lived."

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE MIND READER

By Lily Wandel

T[illegible] was not favorable. [illegible] forgotten Lollie's [illegible] habit of snapping on the center hundred-watt bulbs.

After all, it had been a mistake [illegible] here at Lollie's after ten tell-tale years. The generous covering of new orange rouge was [illegible] mistake, and she was posi[illegible] of the monthly [illegible], a few gray hairs must [illegible] in the unrestricted flood [illegible]. And Lollie—Cicely hated to admit it—was another mistake. Into this one all important evening seemed to be gathered a life-time's [illegible].

Lollie stood daringly sure of herself under the hundred-watt bulbs [illegible] shimmering green dress, for [illegible] world like a young tender [illegible], shooting up in the Spring, [illegible] for light and life.

That green dress Cicely dreaded [illegible] coming near her, for it sent such [illegible] ghostly glare over everything; ex[illegible] over Lollie, whose petal pink [illegible] and brass-colored hair stood victorious in any light.

Acquired Talent

If it had not been for Cicely's acquired talent for reading people's thoughts and interpreting their glances, she would not have retreated to a wing-chair in the farthest corner.

But in Morley Harmon's lynx-like eyes, she saw a faint glimmer of pity or its kin. After ten years he saw her again and he was sorry for her. Who wouldn't be with Lollie flaunting her 18 years in the middle of the room?

And it might very easily be possible, thought Cicely, that some humorously inclined friend had told Morley at the dock, "Cicely Vaughn is still waiting for you, old chap, you know how constant th[illegible] girls grow as the years roll on!" Such constancy must be positively annoying with Lollie, grown up deliciously young and undependable.

Cicely smiled faintly—broad, full smiles brought such lines—at the young girl whom she had deliberately entangled in an intimate friendship because Morley Harmon was a relative of the Dunley family. The parties and dinner invitations she had showered on Lollie Dunley had been for one thing—to be right there at Dunley's when Morley came back from Manila.

And here she was, right on the spot, to read Lollie's gloriously happy thought, the kind very young people have when they fall in love, and to read Morley's more sober, peaceful, very earnest thought, the kind older people have when they first fall in love. There was John, fumbling with a squawky radio, why not read his thoughts, too? Cicely supposed [illegible] had read his thoughts long ago.

Out of the Dark

Suddenly out of the dark clouds of her realizations, came a bright streak of inspiration. John was her solution. John, who had been handy so that people might [illegible] she was quite deserted, beyond having beaus—John who had been so often to dinner, with Lollie invited to keep him from proposing—he would snap Morley out of his pity thoughts for her.

"I really must go." Cicely was on her feet, excited by her plans. "John will walk home with me." She shuddered as the green dress came lovingly close. It would be quite easy to make John propose on the walk home.

"Oh, it's a peach of a night; Morley and I'll walk along, too! Lollie smashed Cicely's plans with happy unconcern.

Cicely saw the faintest of frowns on Morley's forehead. She could read his thoughts again. He did not seem to care for this continual foursome.

In the morning Cicely rang up John and invited him to dinner. He accepted as usual with joyous alacrity. "What a pity," she thought, as she clicked the receiver in place, that it must be John, after all! He's so good and so dreadfully in love that I ought to be happy.

"I think I'll have him propose before dinner and have it settled," she sighed a little. "I suppose I'll become accustomed to his stirring his coffee for a full minute and the annoying way he has of clearing his throat.

Looks Older

At least he looks older than I am even if he isn't. There's Morley, older, and looks ten years younger." She stiffened a little. "If I hadn't read his thoughts—those wretched thoughts of pity!"

John arrived early with roses and Cicely led him to the davenport before the fire. It was a lovely spot for a proposal.

"I'm glad you came early," she began, softly, "this hour before dinner is such a one for confidences. Jonh, you know what a mind-reader I am? I've guessed what's on your mind."

"Cicely!" He had both her hands instantly and pressed them to his lips. "You know? Cicely, dear, you may have guessed, but you can't know how happy I am! I've been so hopelessly in love all along. I came here all the times in hopes—she hasn't come yet, has she?"

Cicely stared. "She—who?" an odd little shiver of apprehension enveloping her.

"Why, Lollie, of course. We wouldn't have a dinner without her, would we?" he beamed at her with brilliant eyes. "Cicely, dear, it's our secret, isn't it, since you've guessed."

Grateful to Her

Cicely felt relieved, she leaned over to press his hand. "Dear John, what a loyal lover you are! To him that waits comes the reward." She leaned a little closer, her eyes moist. John was good, even if he did stir his coffee too long.

"I'm grateful to you, Cicely. Without your help, your invitations, your tactful little dinners for three, I'd never have won my prize. You may have guessed that I loved Lollie, but you don't know that she promised to marry me yesterday, do you?"

Cicely seized the fire-tongs and rescued a falling log. Then she turned a heated face to John. "Oh, what a stupid thing I am!" She began to laugh recklessly.

ner and the table's set for three! Do run over, John, dear, will you, and put the blame on yourself or something! What a happy little dinner we'll have tonight, won't we?" And there were tears in her eyes.

She felt sorry for Morley, she really pitied him. She had read his mind so plainly last night. He was in love, and now Lollie was engaged to John. She did not blame either John nor Morley for being in love Lollie was so tempting.

She sat for some time before the fire wondering how she could gather strength to withstand the pity in Morley Harmon's lynx-like eyes when a voice said, "Pardon me, for walking right in—but that was part of the message John gave me with your belated dinner invitation." Morley smilingly sat down beside her. "It's to be a foursome again all evening, I suppose," with faint bitterness.

Recovered Spirits

She recovered from her surprise and laughed politely. "Oh, I'm afraid it will be! I could read the disappointment in your mind last night.

He showed the white in his eyes "A mind-reader?" incredulously, and she nodded smoothly. "Could you read the pity too?"

She colored a little and shrugged "Yes, but it's misplaced—" she wanted to tell him how sorry she was for him.

He looked at her with interest. "How can I help but be sorry fo myself and pity myself? If yo read that in my mind, surely yo read the love that was there toward Cicely, you must have read how I felt last night, coming ba wrinkled, brown and old with g hair, tired, worn, out of date, find you—beautiful, blooming like delicate white flower!

Carried Picture

"I carried your picture with [illegible] all these years while you were continually doing your duty by [illegible] relatives—I suppose there's so aunt upstairs now to be nurse that?

"And I hoped you might h[illegible] f[illegible]d a little—just enough so [illegible] would not mind marrying me? But there you were, flaunting your fin [illegible] before poor little Lollie, who seemed some green little apple that might mature into something [illegible].

"Dear, since you read my min [illegible] to live for you and the p[illegible] for myself and perhaps, too, [illegible] at the perpetual fou some, perhaps you can read no the question on my lips! And if you don't think me too old, my ten year of constancy too old fashioned, then answer me!"

She shook her head. There was [illegible] anguish in his browned face but she slipped her arms aroun his neck and whispered firmly "You'll have to ask me the question, Morley. I've positively given up mind-reading!"

Hard Time Getting Along

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a widow with six small children—boys, nine, eleven, thirteen, fourteen and fifteen years old, and one girl, eighteen. The girl is in ill health for the past four years. If you can help us out with any old clothes I would be very thankful. I could use some clothes, also size 42, 6 shoe. I am getting a little money from the city, but I have a hard time getting along. MRS. M. F.

Thanks to Mrs. R. M.

Helping Hand Editor:

Will you kindly thank Mrs. R. M. for her kindness? She did not send any address, so I cannot thank her personally. The children were very grateful to her for it. MRS. E. G.

Malden.

Wife Wants to Help

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband is making very little money, and I have five small children. Would like to get some evening work from five until ten or eleven o'clock. Please help me out. MRS. M. L.

Need Winter Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

We have eight children. I have a girl twelve years who needs a Winter coat and warm clothing, a girl nine, one eight and two boys, fourteen and six. They all go to school. I have two boys at home, eighteen years and baby two years old. They need clothes. My oldest boy is not working. I wish you would please try and get him a job, so he can help us. He would like to get a chauffeur license. MRS. L. B.

Now Have Butter on Bread

Helping Hand Editor:

Will you please thank the person who sent me the three dollars? If you could only see how glad my children were. "Now we can have butter on our bread," they said. If not asking too much, I hope the kind readers will not forget them with some old toys, etc., for Xmas.

Fall River. MRS. R. A. G.

Unable to Work Hard

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a young man twenty-six years of age. Having recently suffered a nervous breakdown, am unable to resume the hard work required by my trade. Is there some kind reader who can offer me some light employment? Financial conditions are such at home here that I am very anxious to help out. A. J.

Baby Adopted

Helping Hand Editor:

Just a few lines to let you know how much I appreciate what you have done in helping me to find someone to adopt my baby. I thank you with all my heart. MRS. E. LaR.

Wants Carpet or Rug

Helping Hand Editor:

I wonder if some kind reader has some old carpet or a rug which they have no further use for? My baby is forever lying on the floor, and in this weather I know she will get sick, but I cannot keep her off it and cannot afford to buy any carpet or rug. I have some magazines and a tea kettle that anyone can have who wants them. MRS. E. G. C.

Thanks for Box

Helping Hand Editor:

Please thank the lady living in Atlantic, Mass., for the box she sent me. She did not send me her name. My little boy, eight years old, would like Santa Claus to bring him a velocepede,, but I can't get him one as my husband has not been able to work yet, and there are eight children to look out for. They would like some toys and dolls and doll carriages that other folks are willing to give away. I take a large size coat, 50 or 52, and would greatly appreciate one. MRS. E. M. S.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

ACCORDING to the shopping calendar there are only ten more days in which to have your ribs broken before Christmas.

PEOPLE should do their holiday shoving early.

A CONSCIENTIOUS shopper can go down town to a department store in the morning a picture of health and come back a physical wreck.

SEVERAL of the first class shops are now running ambulances to and from the residential district.

THEY make regular stops at all the emergency hospitals.

INSTEAD of spending ten cents car fare you can break your arm and get taken home for nothing.

ONE man who received a fractured skull knocked his companion's teeth out so that he could have company in the ambulance.

NO matter how hard you urge them, a lot of people won't purchase their gifts early. One woman started yesterday to do her shopping for last Christmas.

SHE said that this year hasn't seemed like Christmas at all because she's been shopping for two days now without getting a scratch.

BEING wounded is half the fun of shopping.

SHE'S going down to a department store next Monday and if she doesn't get hurt she's going to complain to the manager.

JUST because she doesn't get a few broken ribs she thinks she's being ignored.

AND when she doesn't come home all battered up her husband imagines she's been loafing.

SHE'S made up her mind to get in a fight the next time she goes down if she has to start it herself.

ANOTHER woman was so disappointed at not being injured that she went home and knocked her elbow out of joint with a hammer.

A DAME who was arrested over on Long Island the other afternoon for shooting her husband told the judge that she was doing her Christmas shopping early.

SHE said she shot him because he was no good at carrying bundles and that was all she married him for.

IN some of the shops the elevator service is so poor that a lot of women are fainting just so they can be carried to the different floors.

WOMEN who leave their shopping until the last minute will find it safer to go down "As is" and leave their teeth, hair and eyebrows at home.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

THE third day of the third month of each year is a day to which all little girls of Japan look forward with the keenest anticipation. For it is then that they bring out all their dolls in state, dressed in holiday array, and prepare a great feast for them.

The third day of the third month would correspond to the middle of the last day of our own April, and at this time the sakura trees, which resemble our peach trees, burst into bloom. For this reason the Festival of Dolls is sometimes known as the "Festival of Peach Flowers." But the little girls know, and their mothers know, that the festival is really in honor of their dolls and nothing else.

Bright and early on the morning of this eventful day every little Japanese girl and, for that matter, every Japanese woman, arrays herself in her best attire. The mothers adorn the chamber of state with the blossoming sagura boughs, so that their fragrance and sweetness fills the house. In this chamber of state they arrange an exhibition of all the dolls their daughters own and have received on this gala day.

Then the children prepare a great feast for the dolls. Of course, the little figures are believed to partake liberally of everything that is set before them, but after they have been satisfied there always remains enough for the grown-ups to feast upon in the evening.

This feast, after the children have retired with their dolls, is the culminating event of this pretty festival. Back go the dolls to their customary place in the nursery, the children resume their every-day frocks, and all goes on as before until the third day of the third month shall return again and once more bring the dolls their moment of honor and glory.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR baby's teeth begin to form about seven and one-half months before it is born.

They consist primarily of soft tissue, in which is deposited the mineral matter that makes the teeth hard.

This mineral matter, like everything consumed with the baby's growth before birth, is derived from the mother's blood.

It follows, therefore, that if your baby's teeth are to be sound and firm, the mother must have both a proper assortment and a proper amount of such mineral matter in her blood.

These teeth keep on forming in their sockets for about six months after birth before one of them begins to cut through the gum.

This is also a part of the formative period of the teeth, the success of which depends upon the mineral matter in your milk or other food that is furnished it.

Mother's milk is the best possible food for tooth building, but she must keep it up to the standard by keeping up a well-balanced diet.

The first teeth usually come in the following order: four central incisors, sixth to eighth month; four lateral incisors, seventh to eighth month; four first molars, 14th to 16th month; four cuspids, 16th to 18th month, and four second molars, 20th to 24th month.

There are twenty teeth in all, ten lowers and ten uppers.

These baby teeth, or temporary teeth, require the best of care to keep them from decaying at the crown.

It is their function not only to help the baby eat, but to furnish solid material for the formation of the after-coming permanent teeth. This means that the roots of the baby teeth are absorbed to make the crowns of permanent teeth.

The first permanent tooth to appear is the so-called six-year molar. The order of the appearance of the other permanent teeth are as follows:

Four first molars, sixth to seventh year.

Two central incisors, lower, sixth to seventh year.

Two central incisors, upper, seventh to eighth year.

Four lateral incisors, seventh to ninth year.

Four first bicuspids, tenth to 11th year.

Four second bicuspids, tenth to 12th year.

Four cuspids (eye teeth), 11th to 13th year.

Four second molars, 12th to 14th year.

Four third molars, 18th to 25th year.

It is of the highest importance that the baby first and the child next shall be taught good habits of dental hygiene.

Much of the child's future health, happiness and success depend upon it.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

ON New Year's Day of the year 1672, a lone horseman started out on a perilous journey from New York to Boston, to open up the first postal delivery route in the American colonies.

A proclamation had gone forth that letters would "bee conveyed to Hartford, Conecticut, Boston and other parts along the Road and bee carefully delivered according to the Directions by a sworne Messenger and Post, who is purposely imployed in that Affayre."

The path which this first postman traveled was beset with dangers. First, there was the tractless and uncharted wilderness which had to be traversed. Raging storms and savage beasts might be encountered, and worst of all, death-bearing arrows from the hand of the Indian. But the pioneer spirit shrinks at nothing and some unnamed hero was found to undertake this perilous ride.

The postman started off on the first Monday of each month from New York, and returned within the month. His mailbag, he gathered up at the Coffee House on the Battery, for the keeper of the tavern was none other than the postmaster. Letters were left with the innkeeper who, after collecting a small fee, affixed certain "Post Payed Figures and Designs," and sorted the letters according to their destination.

The incoming letters were kept in a rack until they were called for, in person, by those who were expecting mail.

The mailbags which were destined for such cities as Boston and Hartford, were carefully sealed by the Secretary's office, but the bag that contained mail to be delivered along the road, was left unsealed.

Along the route, the postman was received with the greatest cordiality and enthusiasm. He was invited into the homes of the most prominent citizens, tempted with food, plied with questions.

In those days, without the aid of newspapers, news traveled so slowly that the postman was regarded as the best informed person within reach. He came direct from the large centers and brought the latest news from home and abroad.

In those days there were no such things as postage stamps and even in 1692 when the Post Office was moved from the Coffee House to Richard Nicoll's grocery store at No. 62 Broad street, the "Post Payed Figures and Designs" were still employed. It was not until 1744 that the Post Office could boast of an office of its own, and then three years later, Congress authorized the first issue of stamps.

Back in 1673, it took one month to send a letter from New York to Boston and back, and people thought that the world was being revolutionized. Yesterday we sent a letter over the same route and received an answer the following day. And now, behold the miracle of the Air-Mail. What next?

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

Probably you feel that at your age you should have advanced farther. Is it any consolation for you to know that almost everybody else feels the same way?

One reason we have such notions is that a lot of nonsense is written about this being "A Young Man's Country" and about most of the biggest jobs being filled by young or youngish men. Most of the biggest jobs in America are not filled by youngish men.

The United States has fourteen billion-dollar enterprises, meaning enterprises having assets of that amount or more. It is fair to regard the presidents of these gigantic organizations as filling about the biggest jobs in the country. Well, what is the average age of these fourteen presidents? Look at this table:

CORPORATION	PRESIDENT	AGE
American Tel. & Tel.	Harry B. Thayer	69
At., Top. & Santa Fe.	W. B. Storey	67
Baltimore & Ohio	Daniel Willard	63
Metropolitan Life Ins.	Haley Fiske	72
National City Bank	C. E. Mitchell	47
N. Y. Central	P. E. Crowley	60
N. Y., Chi. & St. Louis	J. J. Bernet	56
N. Y. Life Ins.	D. P. Kingsley	67
Pennsylvania R. R.	Samuel Rea	68
Prudential Ins.	E. D. Duffield	53
Southern Pacific	W. Sproule (about)	60
Standard Oil, N. J.	W. C. Teagle	46
U. S. Steel	J. A. Farrell	61
Union Pacific	Carl R. Gray	57

The average age of these men works out at almost 61.

Boston announced the other day the election of a bank vice-president and claimed that "he is one of the youngest, if not the youngest," in the country to occupy such a position. This young banker, Walter Tufts, who has been made vice-president of the American Trust Company, is 33.

This does not constitute any new record. In New York last year Julian W. Potter was elected, not vice-president, but president of the Coal & Iron Bank when he was 33. William Woodward fell heir to the presidency of the important Hanover National Bank when he was only 34, while Harvey D. Gibson became president of the Liberty National Bank, New York, when 35, and president of one of New York's leading institutions, the New York Trust Company, when 39.

Daniel G. Wing was elected president of the First National Bank of Boston when 34; he is now 55. Philip Stockton was chosen president of the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, when he was 36; he is now 50. J. F. Sartori, was made president of the Security Trust & Savings Bank of Los Angeles when only 36, although that was 30 years ago.

ARE SHARPLY HIGHER PRICES COMING?

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

Are sharply higher prices coming? Brookmire asks itself that question, and then replies:

With all the great sources of demand, on the average, in a better buying position than they have been since the early part of 1920, there is an extreme likelihood that between now and the end of the first half of 1925, we are likely to see some sharp rises in the general price level. As the situation stands at present there is practically no probability of weakness developing in it during that period.

As far as buying policies are concerned, we believe it would be safer to assume that we are going to witness a fairly rapid upward general price movement, than to base such policies on the assumption that general prices will remain relatively stable between now and the end of next Spring.

Men shoppers surrounded by women spend little money. Squeezed in among throngs of feminine buyers, their natural inclination is to get in and out as quickly as possible. Best business practices, therefore, indicate that it is better to separate the men's department from the rest of the store. A section of the first floor partitioned off from the main store, with entrances of its own, will attract the average masculine buyer, according to the domestic commerce division of the Department of Commerce in "Retail Store Planning," the fourth pamphlet in a series prepared with the help and at the suggestion of prominent retailers for the benefit of the store trade generally.

Satisfactory service to the community at reasonable profit to the retailer is the object of up-to-date store planning, the pamphlet points out, in touching upon the principles which should govern the interior layout of retail stores.

By "putting up a good front" the retailer inspires many a passerby with a desire to become better acquainted with his merchandise. The external features of the store intimate to the public the nature of the activity within. For that reason the store front should suggest the highest attainment in the particular line of business conducted.

The store window is naturally the most important feature of the store front. The type, size, general construction and lighting of show windows must meet the requirements of the goods to be displayed. For large articles of furniture the window space should be of sufficient depth to permit effective display. A soft lavender glow, which might cause feather fans and other dainty articles of feminine dress to look enticingly beautiful would intensify the gloom of a sealskin coat.

"Come In" subtly suggested in a distinctive store entrance means more money in the cash drawer, the pamphlet says in a section devoted to "Store Entrances." In support of this suggestion it points to the fact that women, who do most of the buying for the home and family, will be interested window shoppers for several blocks without being conscious of a single store entrance. Then suddenly the family shopper enters a store for which she was not originally bound. The construction of the entrance, its location and even the ease of operation of the door must be considered. Few people will voluntarily struggle with a door inclined to stick.

STOCKS MIXED IN NEW YORK

Prices were irregular in Wall street trading today. The market started strong, underwent a reaction and then rallied around noon.

Professional attempts to unsettle the general list were renewed, heavy selling forcing a number of oils and low-priced rails down 1 to 2½ points and causing temporary abandonment of pool operations in other stocks.

Popular industrials also lost ground, People's Gas, General Electric, Kelsey Wheel, Gulf States Steel, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Realty, Union Bag & Paper, American Express and Chicago Northwestern yielding 1½ to nearly 3 points.

A steady demand for coppers, which sent Kennecott above 54 to a new top price for the year, and bullish demonstrations in some of the merchandising issues, notably Sears Roebuck and May Department Stores, steadied the market around noon. Call money renewed at 2½ per cent.

American Water Works, Postum Cereal and Central Leather preferred reached new 1924 highs.

In Boston Stock Exchange trading New Haven was off over a point in the afternoon, other price changes at the time being nearly all fractional and pretty evenly divided between gains and losses.

Lawson as a Mayor

the gratified people of Grand Rivers elected Thomas W. Lawson mayor. But from the new mayor down, everyone, in the rush of their enthusiasm, overlooked the gaunt ruins of William Kelly's old-time furnace and gave faint thought, if any, to the time-grayed timbers stretching up against the blue of the cloudless sky.

Reason itself was swept to the winds in this mad rush. The alluring sight of coal and iron ore swept away all caution.

Lawson's subsidiary interests sprang up like weeds until he had nine of them, including a weekly newspaper, the Grand Rivers Herald, published for the first time on January 8, 1891, with John C. Riley as editor.

The financier, of course, headed all these subsidiary companies, although he continued to maintain his permanent headquarters in Boston.

It was a peculiarity of Lawson during his career that he would entertain no disparagement concerning the worth or possibilities of any of his properties.

One day in the Spring of 1891 one of his engineers on the ground turned in an alarming report on the coal and iron deposits. The report stated that the coal was fireproof and the iron ore too full of sulphur to be of commercial value. In a black rage Lawson "fired" the gloomy engineer and tore up the adverse report.

Conquering Hero

Work and hope rushed along on a flood tide. More investors poured in and additional buildings were erected in an attempt to feed, clothe and house the horde, until by Christmas of 1891 Grand Rivers had expanded from a mere speck on the map to a city attracting nation-wide interest. But not one cent of profit had yet been turned over by the Grand Rivers Company, which was behind the whole boom.

In addition to his being mayor, Lawson naturally was a hero in this humming community. Every time he raced down from Boston for a visit to the spot at the joining of the two rivers the signal was sounded for the celebration of an immediate holiday—gala occasion in the hill town.

Schools were closed, the children rushed into the streets to greet him, the band hastily donned uniforms and struck up lively airs, storekeepers bestirred themselves to wash their front windows and the populace put on its Sunday best.

Nor was this feeling of the inhabitants toward the Boston financier lessened when, at the first Christmas, he sent every child in Grand Rivers a large parti-colored basket filled with fruit, nuts, cakes and candy—with a Christmas card bearing a pretty sentiment nestling in the centre.

At about this time Lawson mailed out to districts where they might do the most good with prospective investors "reprints" of an article purporting to have appeared in "a Kentucky newspaper." A small and comparatively modest part read:

"Colonel" Lawson

"There is probably no better known name in Southwestern Kentucky today than that of the youthful Mayor of our sister city, Grand Rivers.

"Less than a year ago this almost beardless boy came to that beautiful spot between the Cumberland and Tennessee rivrs and mapped out the ideal city, which is the marvel of all who visit it.

"In this brief time have grown great mines, manufacturing establishments and the largest furnaces in the world. Beautiful residences crown the high hills, while the valley is occupied by large and flourishing business blocks and buildings.

"It is said that Colonel Lawson (mark the 'Colonel') has personally supervised the building of the entire city and has spent, in less than a single year, over $2,000,000."

The name of the "Kentucky newspaper" was not given—and for a decidedly good reason. As a matter of fact, the newspaper did not exist.

Lawson himself wrote the article, of which that part quoted is the most sedate and modest. The self-bestowed title of "Colonel" was a happy thought and did more to establish him in the hearts of the drawling, sentimental Kentuckians than would thousands more of crisp, negotiable greenbacks. It gave every appearance of his having been taken into the fold as one of the family.

So Lawson inserted it casually in the printed "Hearts and Flowers" where it would do the most good.

Arrangements for the official opening of the Grand Rivers furnaces—huge flame-belching infernos—were ready as the first year of the boom rounded out the weeks to a close.

In January of 1892 Lawson, accompanied by his eldest son Arnold, then twelve years old, arrived at Grand Rivers for the festive ceremonies. On January 12 young Arnold applied the torch to the furnaces and his father's own newspaper—the Grand Rivers Herald, did the rest.

A Paper of Praise

Lawson wrote a column or two himself, modestly accepting credit for "the success of the undertaking" (the company yet had not profited one nickel) and promising marvelous things for the future.

In addition there were seven other columns of reading matter describing the event and praising the Boston man to the highest peak.

This last, highly laudatory of Lawson and perhaps written in great part by him, was headlined as follows:

IRON MAKING HAS BEEN RESUMED IN KENTUCKY

The Great Furnaces in Blast; the Torch Applied Tuesday night, January 12, by Master Arnold Lawson

A GREAT STREAM OF NO. 1 CAR-WHEEL IRON

Now Running From the Fiery Monsters—Lawson's and Searle's Predictions Based on Solid Rock—Ignominious Rout of the Croakers—An Everlasting Monument to

BRAINS, PLUCK AND GRIM DETERMINATION

Kentucky's Sons and Daughters Bow the Knee of Gratitude to the Plucky Pioneers From Yankeeland

GRAND RIVERS TO PITTSBURGH

"Keep Your Eye on the Spot Between the Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers"

This publicity, widespread by Lawson through his reprint method, in addition to mailing original copies, resulted in another rush of investors and settlers to Grand Rivers.

The new selling campaign was even more successful than the first, and hundreds of families invested their entire savings merely on the strength of his glowing promises.

Pulls Out His Own

The report made long before by the honest engineer who was "fired" because his report was an adverse one was a hint to Lawson that all was not as rosy beneath the surface of the earth at Grand Rivers, as it appeared above.

Certainly, for some time before the firing of the furnaces, he must have known that the enterprise had not a chance to succeed and that the investors were slated for heart-breaking losses.

Events of the months following proved this. Not a dollar in profit had been realized by the company and faint tricklings of the alarming situation began to get to the ears of the public.

By doin, a "sleight-of-hand" piece of financing, however, Lawson managed to keep the enterprise going and reorganized it in 1893 under the name of the Grand Rivers Consolidated, with a capital of $10,000,000.

This postponed the collapse for a short period, but in 1894, the patched up venture staggered and tumbled into a sodden heap, but not until Lawson had pulled what was left of his own irons out of the fire.

The huge iron bubble had burst and there was wailing and weeping throughout the land.

Tomorrow—Lawson studies the business end of a revolver, gets the wrong number and turns on the gas. The illuminating adventure!

NEURITIS

MRS. CATHERINE CONNER, 19 NEWBERN ST., ROXBURY, MASS., says:—"I had Neuritis so bad that I could not pick up a pin. I was so dizzy that I did not feel safe to go out alone. I had been treated by other doctors for more than a year, but did not get any relief until I read of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and the wonderful cures they were making of people who suffered from chronic diseases. I went to them and they did wonders for me. I feel all right now, thanks to the Osmo-Chemic Physicians."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY and MERCURY-QUARTZ LIGHT TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE.

No matter what your disease may be, remember that the Osmo-Chemic doctor gives

Probably no New England State except Massachusetts is big enough, of itself, to compete at boosting with the great Empire-States of the West and South.

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1924

BOSTON AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

But that must not mean that there shall be no boosting. Has anyone thought of the possibility of ONE CENTRAL PROMOTION BUREAU, SERVING ALL NEW ENGLAND? Why not?

Alert Minute Men of New England Will "Turn Traditions Into TRADE-itions"

THE FOURTEEN NEW ENGLAND units of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, meeting recently in annual convention at Hartford, Connecticut, adopted one resolution which, if properly followed by ACTION, will do a lot toward helping New England to, as the saying is, find herself.

This resolution, adopted by 600 delegates to the New England District Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, called upon

> "New England leaders in manufacturing, leaders in commerce, leaders in agriculture, leaders of capital and of labor, to band themselves in organized co-operation for investigation of the many possibilities for industry and agriculture in New England, that New England may learn of the things she is best fitted to do in an economic sense to serve herself and the world."

And in that "organized co-operation," the New England Advertising Clubs pledged themselves to take their "full part."

Good resolutions!

No one can or will deny that it would be a good thing for New England to learn of the things she is best fitted to do—AND THEN GO AHEAD AND DO THEM.

But the trouble with most resolutions of this character, adopted in the closing hours of a convention, no matter how delightful, is that they are more or less routine.

As a rule, they are proposed, adopted and—forgotten.

You can "resolute till the cows come home," but if there isn't punch behind the resolution, if somebody doesn't start something and if a lot of somebodys do not keep everlastingly at it, it will never get anywhere.

In five hundred newspaper offices in the United States two hundred great American novels are conceived every twenty-four hours and three hundred and eighty-eight salable short stories outlined.

Only one or two of the novels ever get beyond the first typewritten page; practically all the short stories are forgotten before next sun-up.

It is only once in awhile that the Great Idea is born in a man who has grit and gumption enough to hang to it until he can see Results.

Mayor Curley called public attention to a man and an idea of this description a few days ago when, turning the first shoveful of earth for a continuation of the Dorchester tunnel out of Andrew Square, he introduced a gray-haired gentleman as the "father of the Shawmut Branch loop."

The gray-haired gentleman is Mr. Charles A. Ufford, of No. 240 Norfolk Street, Dorchester, whose untiring efforts to bring about this particular improvement began as long ago as 1887.

Mr. Ufford was seldom seen in newspaper offices or legislative halls without a roll of blueprints under his arm. He talked the proverbial "mile a minute." Tired editors have been known to dodge him. Weary legislators have been seen running away from him. Nothing discouraged him. He loved his native Dorchester. He wanted to do something for it, with absolutely no thought whatever of private or personal gain.

He knew his subject. He had made a thorough study of the question of transportation in all the great cities of the world.

In the beginning, Mr. Ufford fought a lone fight, but before his great campaign was ended he had raised up an army of believers. Success came with numbers, all united in ONE demand.

The Ufford resolve and the Ufford follow-up have resulted in the beginning of what is described as a $4,300,000 development of Dorchester and the outlying territory.

It will benefit 25,000,000 passengers annually.

It will connect Harvard Square and Field's Corner by tunnel.

And, according to Mr. Ufford, whose views everybody NOW agrees are worthy of most serious consideration, it will add $5,000,000 to the valuation of real estate in what HE calls "East Dorchester."

So much for an idea, a "resolution," if you will, when it is translated into deed.

The Hartford convention of the advertising men was one of the most helpful, most inspiring meetings of the kind ever held in these Six States.

Among the stars of the meeting were Fred B. Smith, Roger W. Babson, Edward A. Filene, Mary Caroline Crawford, Bruce Barton, Stanley ("Bucky") Harris of the Washington baseball club, Strickland W. Gillilan and Professor Harry R. Wellman of the Amos Tuck School at Hanover, whose wise, timely, "peppy" and at times almost "sassy" paper, entitled "Making Traditions TRADE-itions!" furnishes the title of today's talk to the Minute Men of New England.

Professor Wellman scolded New England executives for taking golf too seriously. He lambasted the "conference" habit and described how the ride of Paul Revere, if it were made in the year 1924, would be held up until the Chamber of Commerce, a Rotary Club luncheon, the horseshoers' union, an engineers' club, Roger Babson, the movie folk and the radio people were lined up.

A few paragraphs from the Wellman paper will suggest its general tone and are certain to be read with interest by everybody in New England. He said:

"We in New England must awake to the fact that merchandise of all sorts is manufactured west of the Hudson River; moreover, that the increased costs of distribution have made it extremely profitable for Middle-Western manufacturers to adopt and operate the zone system of distribution, and we should learn to appreciate the significance of the fact that Middle-Western business executives go to work in the morning and work all day.

"In New England we have the habit of incubating information 'in conference' and then letting it set. In the opinion of many of our best executives, these conferences have successfully killed many good ideas by talkng them to death, and have delayed action on others until they have quietly and painlessly died from neglect.

"Distribution depends upon means of communication and information.

"In these two fields we have made epoch-making strides—and we seem to be unconscious of it.

"When the last spike was driven into the rails connecting the Atlantic and Pacific, the event was celebrated as epoch-making.

"It was, too, but now alongside the train, trucks rumble, rapid transit lines parallel both, and overhead the transcontinental mail plane drones tirelessly on.

"The movies blazon a style message across the country with every new release. The illustrated magazine, dailies and special Sunday supplements carry the message of the Prince of Wales' latest accident—and the picture of what he was wearing!

"Keokuk knows as soon as Chicago: Schenectady's shop girls, mill hands and Four Hundred knew as much about King Tut as did Fifth avenue—and knew it at the same time.

"Then, of course, there is our newest child, radio. . . . When the motorman, the preacher, the janitor, the lawyer and the banker are all discussing the President's latest speech—the morning after—and discussing it intelligently because they actually heard it, it means something new in American history, something new and vital to business.

"Who has made money out of the bobbed hair craze by selling curling irons and tongs? One of our older houses in New England said: 'Just a fad, we won't touch it.' They had to touch it, but in the meantime new concerns, just a little quicker on the trigger, had filled the first big demand and therefore held the most profitable business.

"In 1924 goods have to be SOLD, and it won't help New England business any if our captains of industry remain supinely bleating for the return of the good old days. 'Them days are gone forever,' and the new truth must be accepted, namely, that it doesn't matter what we can manufacture, the important fact is what can be sold and how much can we sell, individually.

"Born in Vermont, educated in New Hampshire, in business in Boston and spending my vacations in Maine, I know New England and I am proud of New England. We have a WONDERFUL BUSINESS HERITAGE in our reputation for quality, integrity and almost over-fair dealing. Let us work so that this splendid heritage of fair dealing may again recover those other New England traditions of invention, energy and thrift, and thus, indeed, turn traditions into greater trade-itions for New England."

Mr. Filene's was an earnest recommendation that business be brought together in consolidations and trusts.

The Boston merchant would "Ford-ize" New England.

"What is called for in New England," said Mr. Filene, "is that the manufacturers, the chambers of commerce, the real estate men, the transportation men and you advertising men get together and make DEFINITE plans to reorganize New England business on a basis of mass production and mass distribution.

"It is a big order. But it will pay.

"Business must be brought together in consolidations and trusts. In the future, business has got to be bigger than it is now to be as successful as it must be in order to survive. People have got to revise their ideas of big business. . . .

"New England has got to use the new machinery of big business and see that it is helped to work within the law.

"No busness, big or little, has any right to profit except through service.

"Pioneer business put prices as high as it could and held wages as low as possible. Mass production will set the price as low as possible, so that it can get mass selling. And it will pay as high wages as it can, to create mass buying. Mass consumption is possible only when the masses earn good wages. Ford has paid double wages."

The views placed before the New England District Convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World in these addresses by Professor Wellman and Mr. Filene—placed before the delegates at great length, but necessarily here sketched with some haste and much boiling down—undoubtedly reflect earnest and intelligent thought and contain much wisdom.

And it well may be urged that there is wisdom in the resolution which calls for a co-operative study of New England opportunity.

But the thought WILL occur that one of New England's GREAT needs is UNITY.

Scores, possibly a hundred or more organizations, are working today, and working earnestly, for the advancement of the cause of New England, for the betterment of her industries, for the improvement of her trade.

Some of these organizations labor for the advancement of particular localities, or single industries. So far as the good of New England AS A WHOLE is concerned, this work is more or less haphazard.

We are reminded of the fable of the old man who called his sons around him when he was about to die.

"He wanted to impress upon them that UNION IS STRENGTH. He showed them a number of small sticks of wood, handed one to each son and said 'break it.' Each stick was broken easily. Then he took sticks of the same size, fastened them UNITED in one bundle and said to the strongest son, 'break that.' The son couldn't break it.

"The lesson to the boys was plain. They might be overcome SEPARATELY. But if they remained UNITED they would not be overcome."

Isn't there a sugggestion here, a good plan and a workable one, for the Minute Men of New England?

How long is New England going to continue to scatter her shot at the big game of modern trade?

How soon will these Six States learn the value of UNITED ACTION?

Where is the Charles A. Ufford who will lead the way, not for an enlistment of a quarter-century or more, but to "put it over" within a twelvemonth?

"IN UNION THERE IS STRENGTH"

Each of the four cables of the Brooklyn Bridge consists of 19 strands of 332 parallel steel wires and contains, therefore, 6308 wires, representing a strength of 10,730 tons. The unity and strength of the cables depended upon getting each strand into its exact and peculiar place. The same number of wires might have been thrown across the East River without accomplishing anything. As with separate strands, so with separate human beings. All power is in union, in UNITED ACTION toward the same end.

TERRIBLE GRIP DRUGS FASTEN ON VICTIMS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SOME time ago in San Mateo, California, Frank Ross Chambers, Jr., son of the chairman of the board of directors of the Rogers Peet Company, and his seventeen-year-old daughter, Marilouise, committed suicide within two weeks of each other.

Marilouise was found dead on October 8 at midnight, and Friday, October 24, her father shot and killed himself in his California home.

The history of the case which has been made public through the press reveals the terrible grip which drugs get upon anyone, whether they be rich or poor.

Mr. Prentiss, the lawyer who had charge of Mr. Chambers' business, said that both he and his daughter were addicted to the use of drugs, besides which Mr. Chambers was an incurable drunkard. They had plenty of money and every opportunity to live satisfactory lives. But the drug demon had got hold of them and the end of both was death.

If those who are beginning the use of drugs realized the terrible end that is in store for them there would be a slump in the drug market. The trouble is that people cannot see far enough ahead. One who is addicted to drugs, in nine cases out of ten, is hopeless.

The trouble is that no one can help him except himself. No one can get inside of him and strengthen the part that needs strengthening, his will and determination.

Only he can attend to that.

And the trouble is that this very will power is that which is first attacked by the drug and the addict lacks the courage usually to endure the suffering that is implied by the cure.

This is a clear case where people must be protected against themselves.

Laws regulating the manufacturing and sale of drugs should be secured by international arrangement among all countries. No one country is safe against the machinations of another.
